Academics

Being a member of the best faculty in Greenville County and being chosen by them to be their Teacher of the Year has been a great honor for me. I have a great love of learning and would like to inspire my students to have this same love. I put much time, energy, and effort into my profession. An important part of teaching along with preparing oneself to guide students to learning, is to be an example of what we expect our young people to be when they become adult citizens.

Mrs. June Shealy, Teacher of the Year

Principal

I chose the teaching profession because I think that good teaching is essential in the struggle to preserve an adequate system of public education, and I believe that public education must survive if we are to maintain a democratic way of life.

I love young people, and I enjoy teaching. There is nothing more exciting to me than the enthuiasm of a student who has just discovered something new or who has mastered material that seemed impossible to learn.

Although the duties of administration are diverse and often bothersome, it is rewarding to me to know that the real essence of my job as principal is to facilitate the teaching learning process in the individual classroom where the real process of educating is in action.

Marilyn E. Koon

Assistant Principals

The intial success as a teacher combined with the circumstances and people who took an interest in me as an educator serves to encourage and support my efforts. I have always felt best about myself when I work constructivly with others. The formation years of teenagers are the best time to influence because immediate progress is realized. The warmth and foregoing spirit of teenagers renews my faith in the human race.

My high school business teacher was a great influence in my decision to go into the secretarial profession. I attended a local business school right after high school, and also worked in an office, putting to use the skills I had learned.

Being with people is probably the most rewarding thing about my job and, there's never a dull moment in guidance office!!!!!

Lucy McCraw

Social Studies

One of my goals is to instill within my students the importance of becoming an informed citizen. Thus, they might become citizens who will participate intelligently in the governing process. Furthermore, I want to encourage obedience and respect for the law. Of course, there must be knowledge, undertanding, and acceptance. Since loyalty and patriotism are essential to the success of democracy one must include these attributes.

I chose teaching because I respected and admired many of my teachers. I also felt I had a special gift that was worth sharing.

Mathematics was my choice because math has always been my favorite subject. I find mathematics to be interesting, challenging and enjoyable.

The most rewarding experience as a teacher comes from the joy of knowing that my students have gained knowledge and understanding because of my teaching.

Science

I enjoy teaching science because it was my favorite subject in high school and college. I also enjoy teaching science because I learn so many new concepts in science every year.

I feel that the most important part of science is simply the search for knowledge. If a science student will think for himself or herself, and search for answers using the scientific method, he or she has mastered a very important part of science.

I did not want to come back to teaching, because I wanted to go into Journalism. I found myself missing the feedback only found in the classroom.

The most rewarding part of my job is watching young men and women achieve their potential.

I would like to have at least ten men that can bench press 300 pounds or more and squat 400 pounds by June 1, 1984. I would also like to have a 'work free' year in Driver's Education.

Business

Working with and helping young people was always a goal of mine. I saw the teaching profession as one in which I could achieve this goal. The business subjects seem to offer me a challenge, as well as a great enjoyment in obtaining my ambition in life.

It is most rewarding to see students accomplish useful skills which they can use throughout life.

I enjoy the variety of different people and discovering creative ways to meet their needs.

McGaha named assistant principal

By Virginia Wallace
School Reporter

Dec. 19, Billie McGaha assumed duties as Mauldin High School assistant principal. This position was left vacant by Marshall Nichols when he became administrative assistant at the Southeast Area office.

Ms. McGaha joins the team of Harold Newsome, assistant principal, and Marilyn Koon, principal. Her duties concern supervision of attendance, guidance activities, and evaluation and supervision of staff.

"I want to be able to do something to help students stay in school. The student is the most important person on campus," McGaha said.

As with anyone in a new position, Ms. McGaha had some first impressions of Mauldin High. "I have noticed the closeness of the faculty and the rapport of the faculty with the students. I am impressed with the way the faculty has accepted me; they've given me total support."

On the subject of students and curriculum, McGaha remarked, "I get the impression the students know the rules and most of them follow the rules." She went on to say, "Mauldin High is academically tops as seen by the curriculum offered."

Ms. McGaha was born and reared in Brevard, N.C., and attended Brevard College one year. At that time, she took a job in industrry to earn college expense money but the pay was so good she stayed nine years.

However, since she has always wanted to be a teacher, she began night and weekend classes the last two of those years, followed by one and a half years as a full-time student at Western Carolina where she received her degree in business education.

Her first teaching assignment, typing and business math, lasted two years at West Henderson High in Hendersonville, N. C. Then she moved back to Brevard and taught typing three years at her alma mater.

Ms. McGaha moved to Greenville 10 years ago. She was a guidance counselor at Eastside High School and an assistant principal at Carolina High before coming to Mauldin.

Since she enjoys being outdoors, she swims for relaxation and walks about three miles a day for exercise. Additional recreation and interests are reading, movies and attending school.

Summer plans are never formulated too far in advance, she feels. She prefers to do what comes along whether it be fun or schooling, but never part-time work. Ms. McGaha said, "I'll make it on my regular salary!"

For now she is busy learning the procedures at Mauldin High School.

— Most of the time band competitions are fun. We usually have to be at the school early so that we can run through the whole show at least once. When we get to the contest we put on our uniforms, warm up as a group, and wait for our performance time. As soon as we enter the field, we can hear everyone screaming and yelling. After our performance we go back to the busses to hear the negative comments made by Mr. Leo

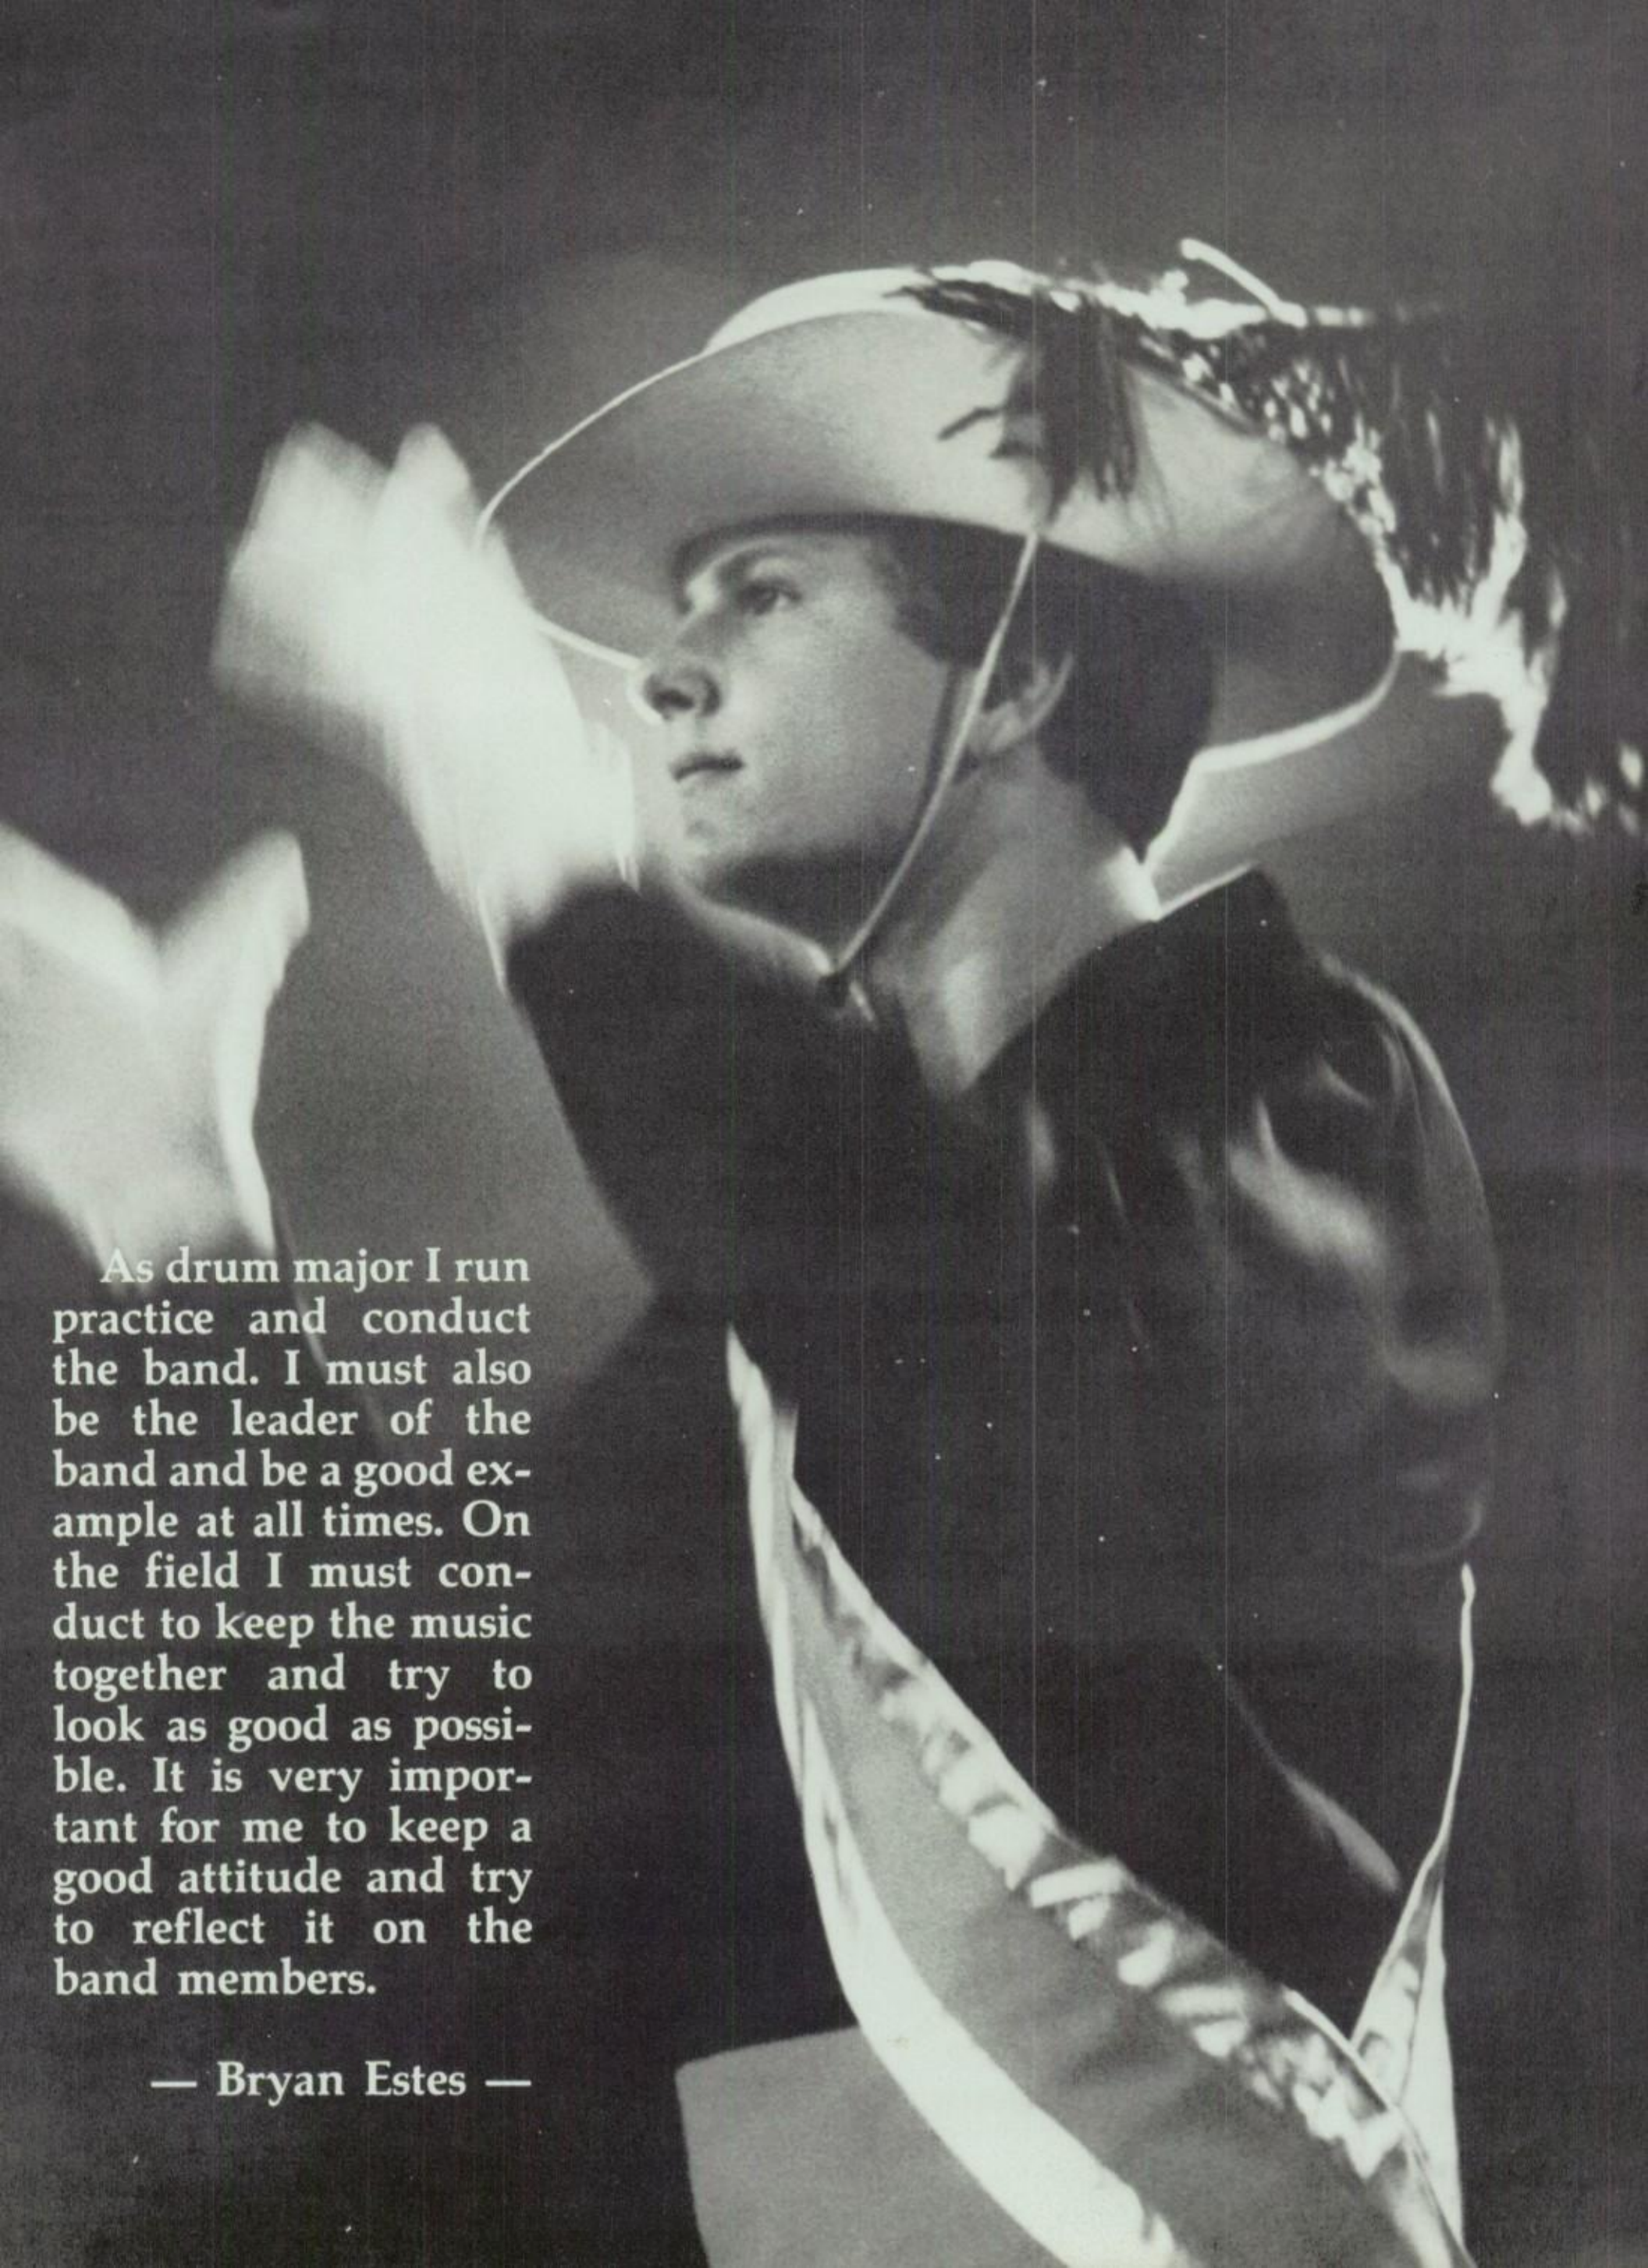
I really enjoy the closeness and security that the band provides. It's like a second family. Anytime you need help you can always turn to the band. Without the closeness between the members and the different sections, the band would not be able to achieve what it has.

— Laura Blaser —



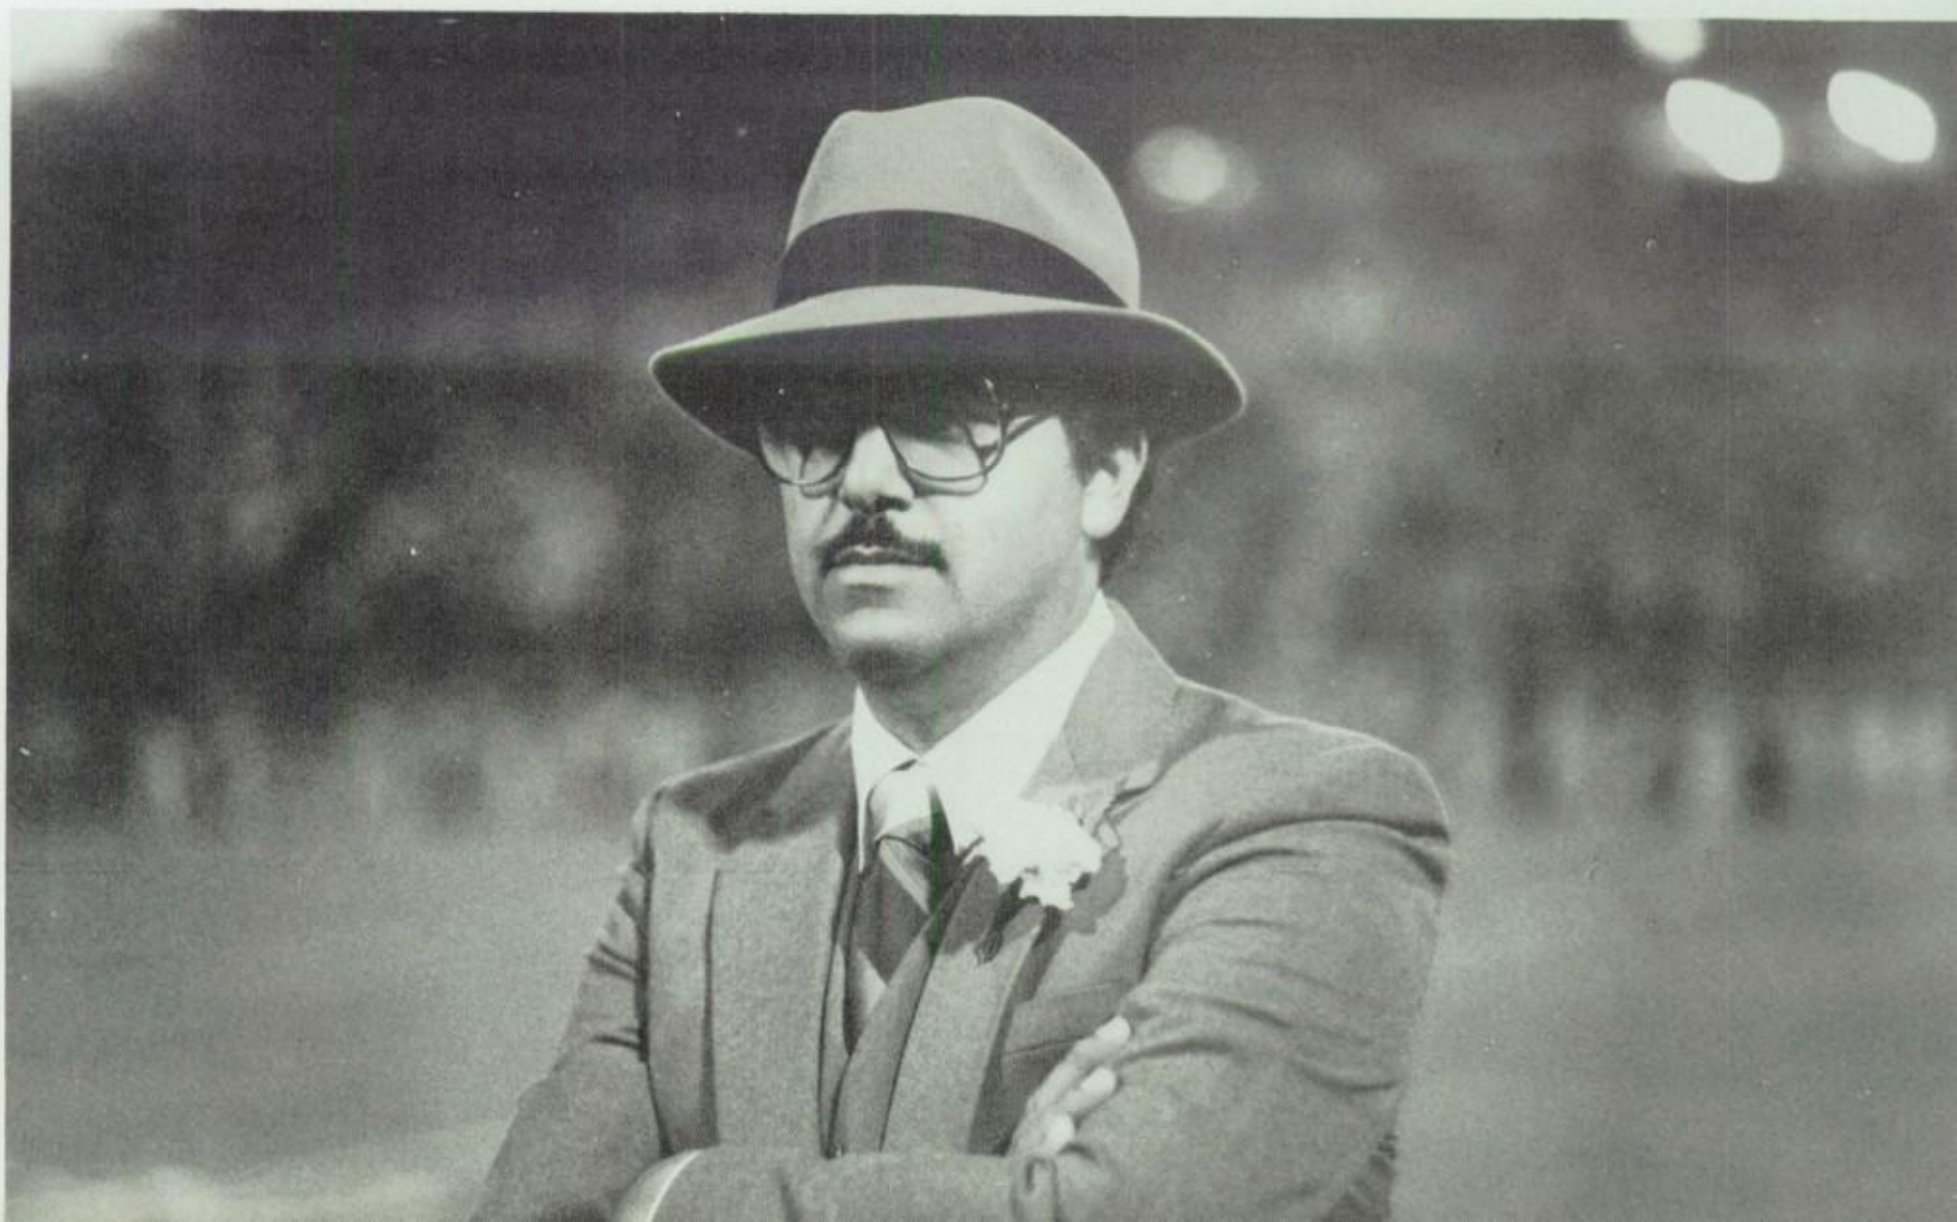
As drum major I run practice and conduct the band. I must also be the leader of the band and be a good example at all times. On the field I must conduct to keep the music together and try to look as good as possible. It is very important for me to keep a good attitude and try to reflect it on the band members.

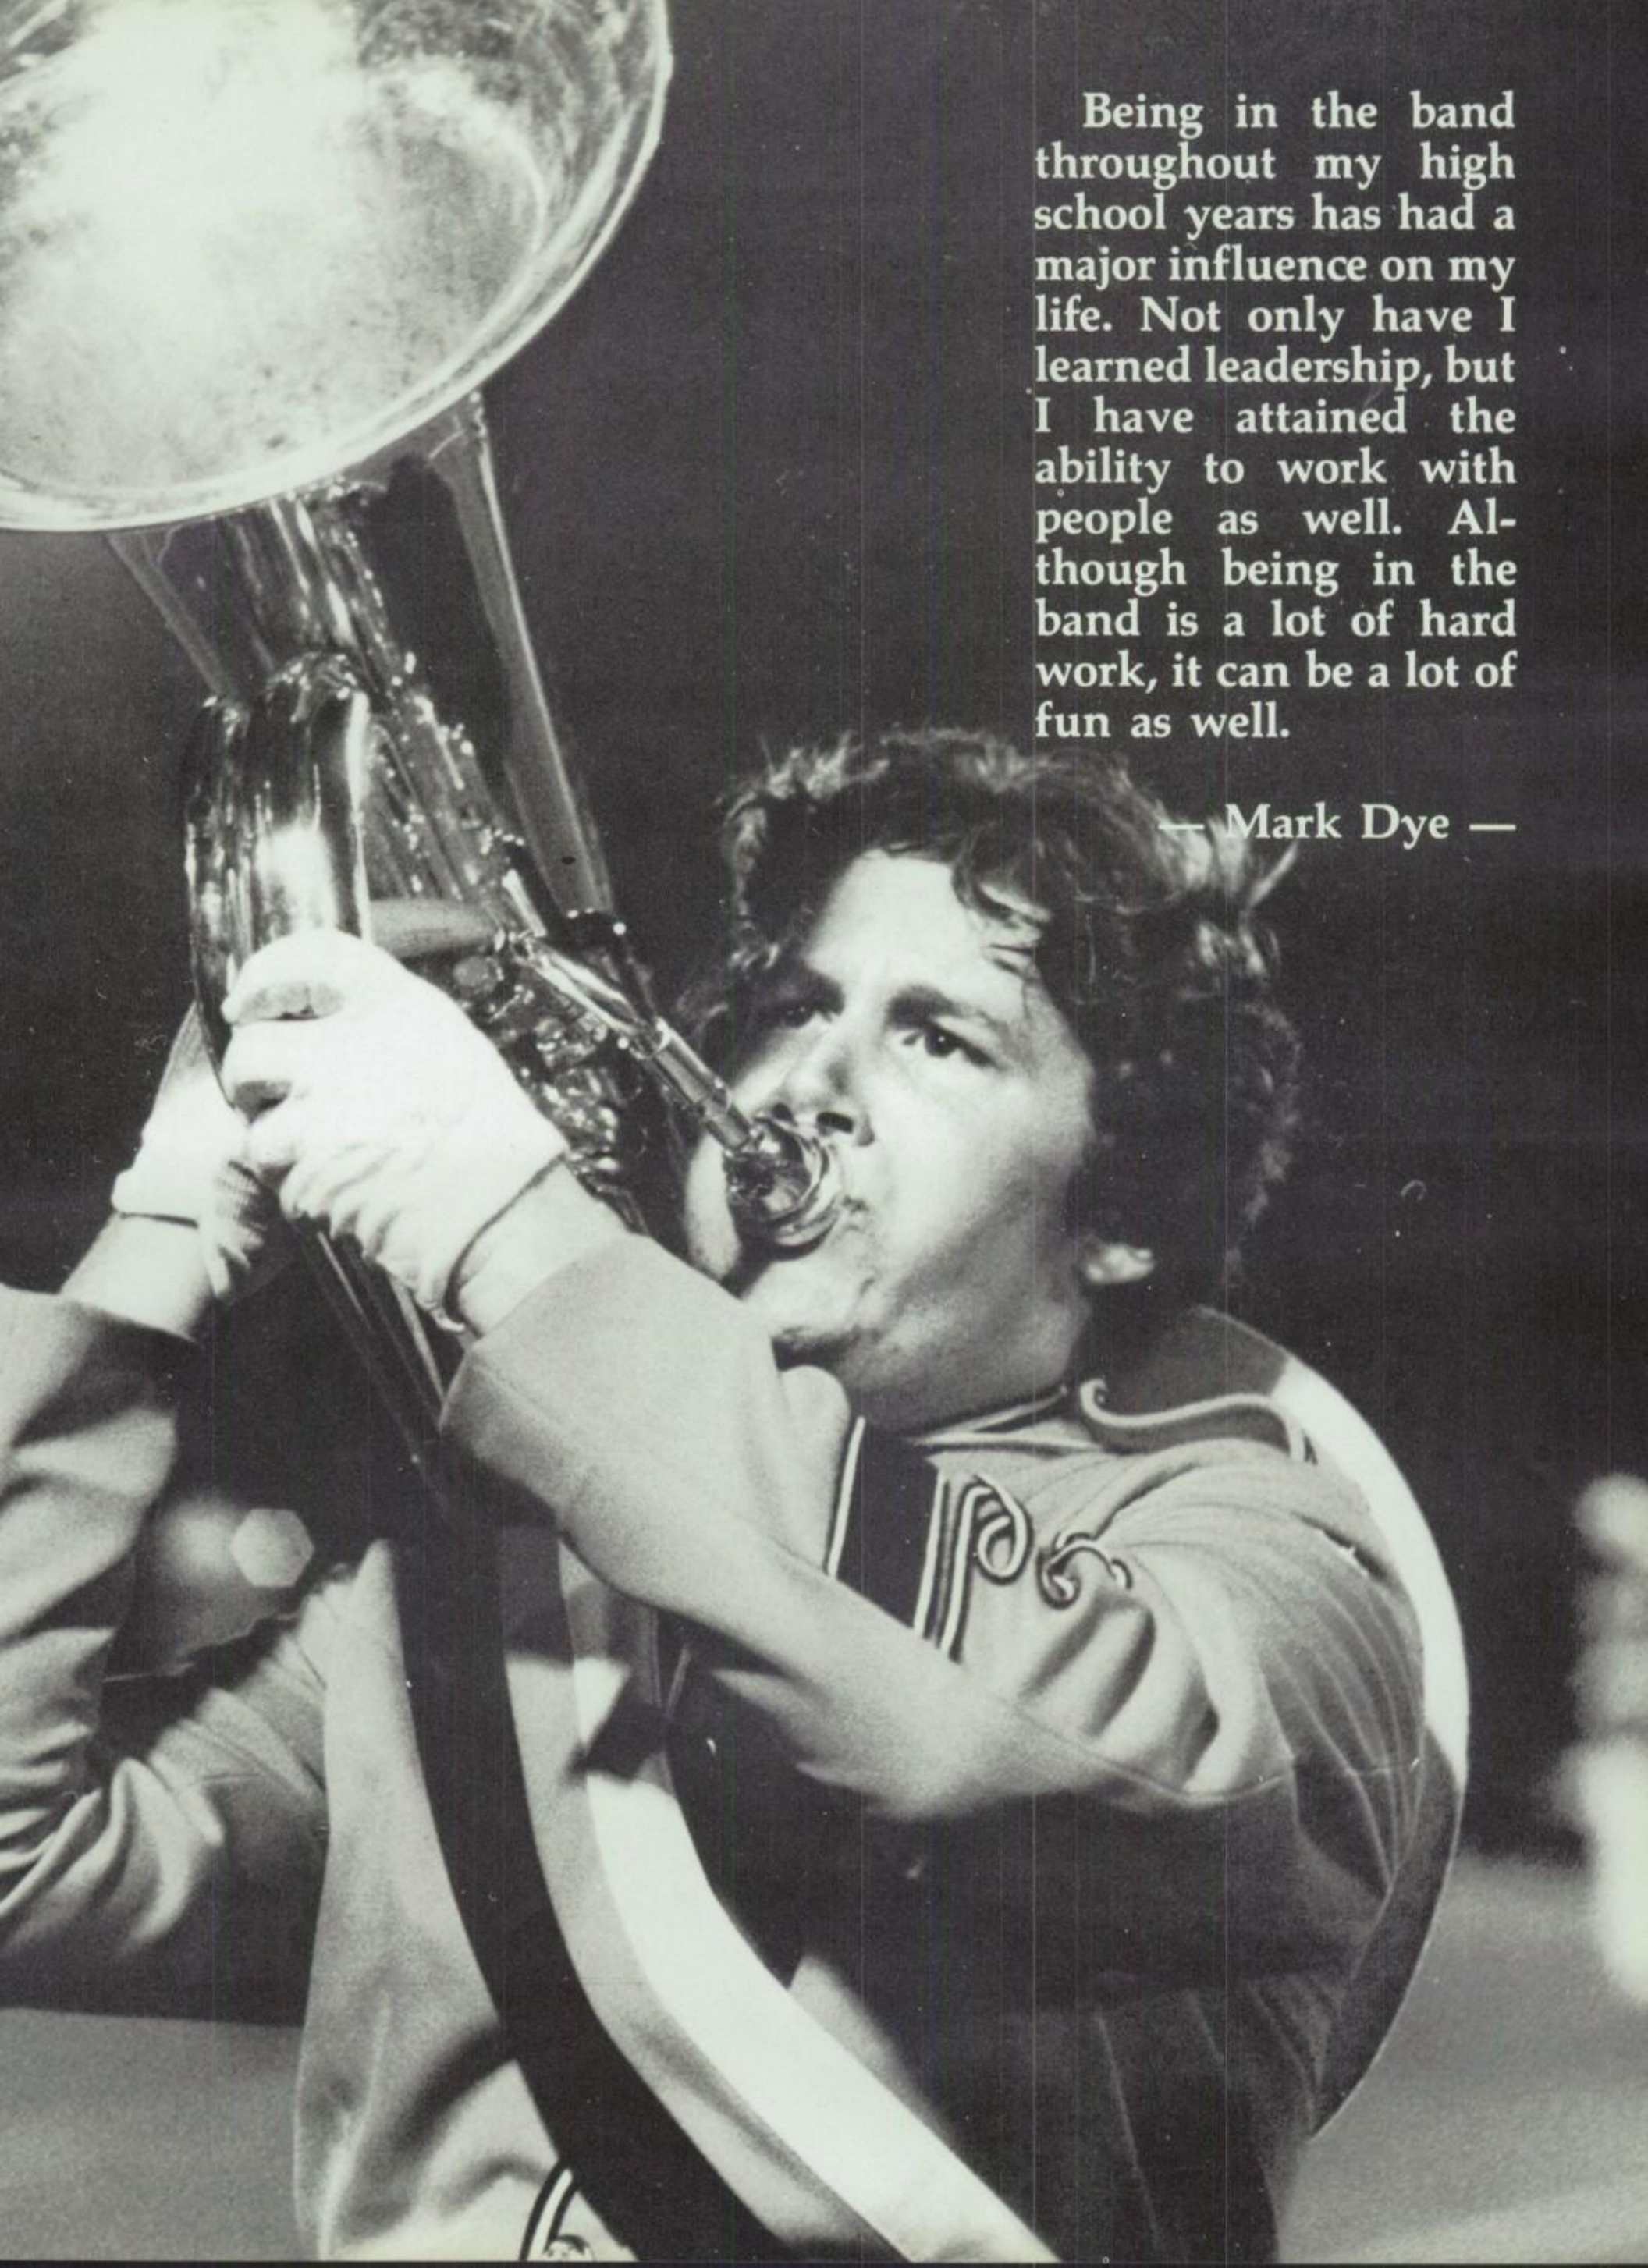
— Bryan Estes —

Band

Some people think Mr. Leo is mean. I never knew the real meaning of band until I became a senior and listened to him and the other seniors talk. Your attitude means alot if you are in the band. You have to have a will of wanting to improve everyday. You have to walk on the field like you own it with your head up high.

— Labrentha Durham —





Being in the band throughout my high school years has had a major influence on my life. Not only have I learned leadership, but I have attained the ability to work with people as well. Although being in the band is a lot of hard work, it can be a lot of fun as well.

National Honor Society

The purpose of the National Honor Society is to promote academic excellence while at the same time, raising money for the Marilyn E. Koon Scholarship Fund. Our variety of activities include secret pals, raffles, breakfast for our new members, an induction ceremony, a Christmas party, and an end-of-the-year banquet. This year we want everyone to get involved in at least one activity. Unlike in the past when the members just attended the meetings, we are now using a point system to insure the participation of everyone.

To be a bus driver takes patience, guts and enough driving skill to pass the tests. You have to be at least 16 years old too. Field trips are big rewards — out of class all day enjoying someone else's field trip and getting money to do it. I like knowing kids of all ages. "MR. Mac" is a great supervisor to all the drivers. He's a good friend to all of us and we really appreciate him.

I think it is about time the smokers are represented as more than just "those troublemakers." Most of our members are just normal people. We formed this club to benefit the whole school, not just the smokers. We hope to accomplish some improvements for the smoking area by pure hard work. Hey, we're just normal people, and we've got our own rights too.

Football

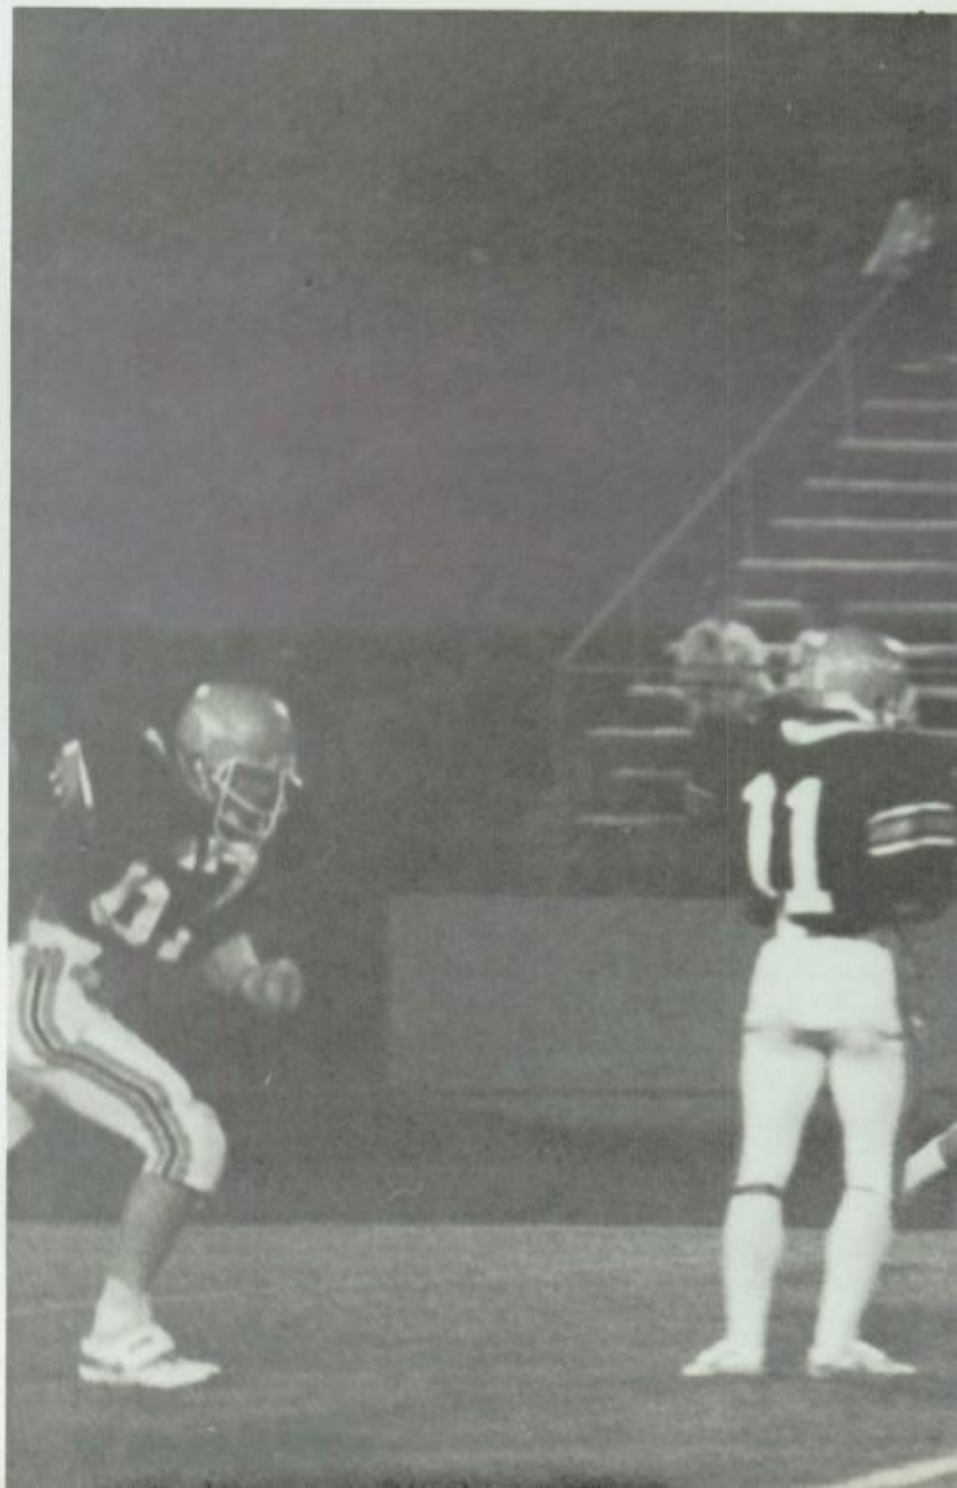
My most memorable moment was at this year's Jamboree. Lee Lester threw me a 94-yard touchdown pass which was, unfortunately, called back.

My personal goal for the season is to give 110% at football and at school.

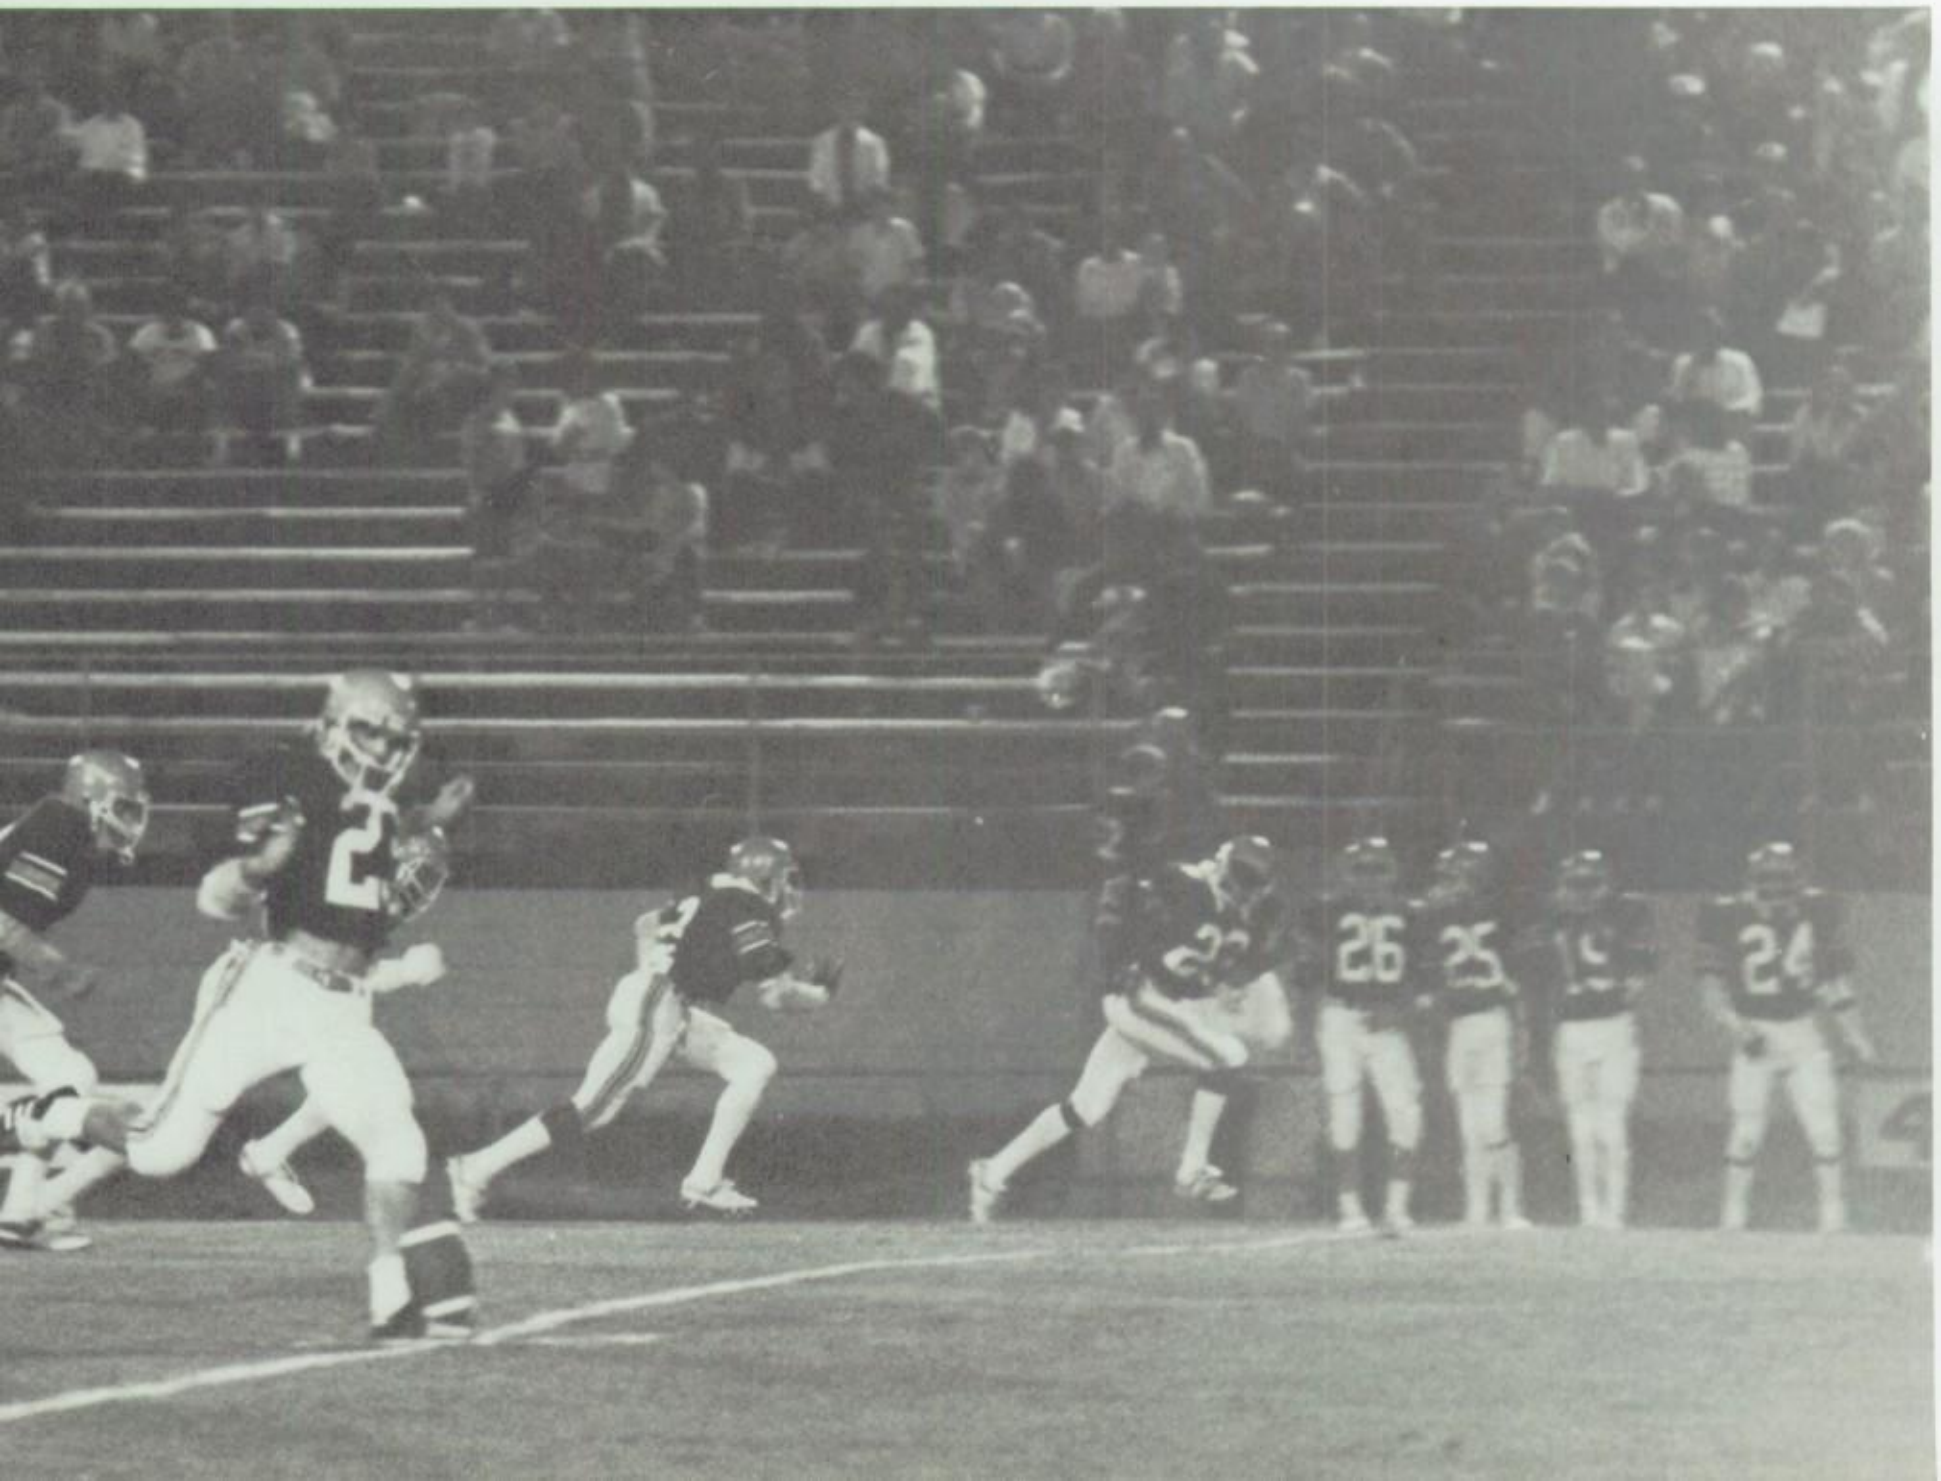
The support we receive as a varsity team is great. The fans really help me as an individual to get fired up to play.

— Scott Evans #23

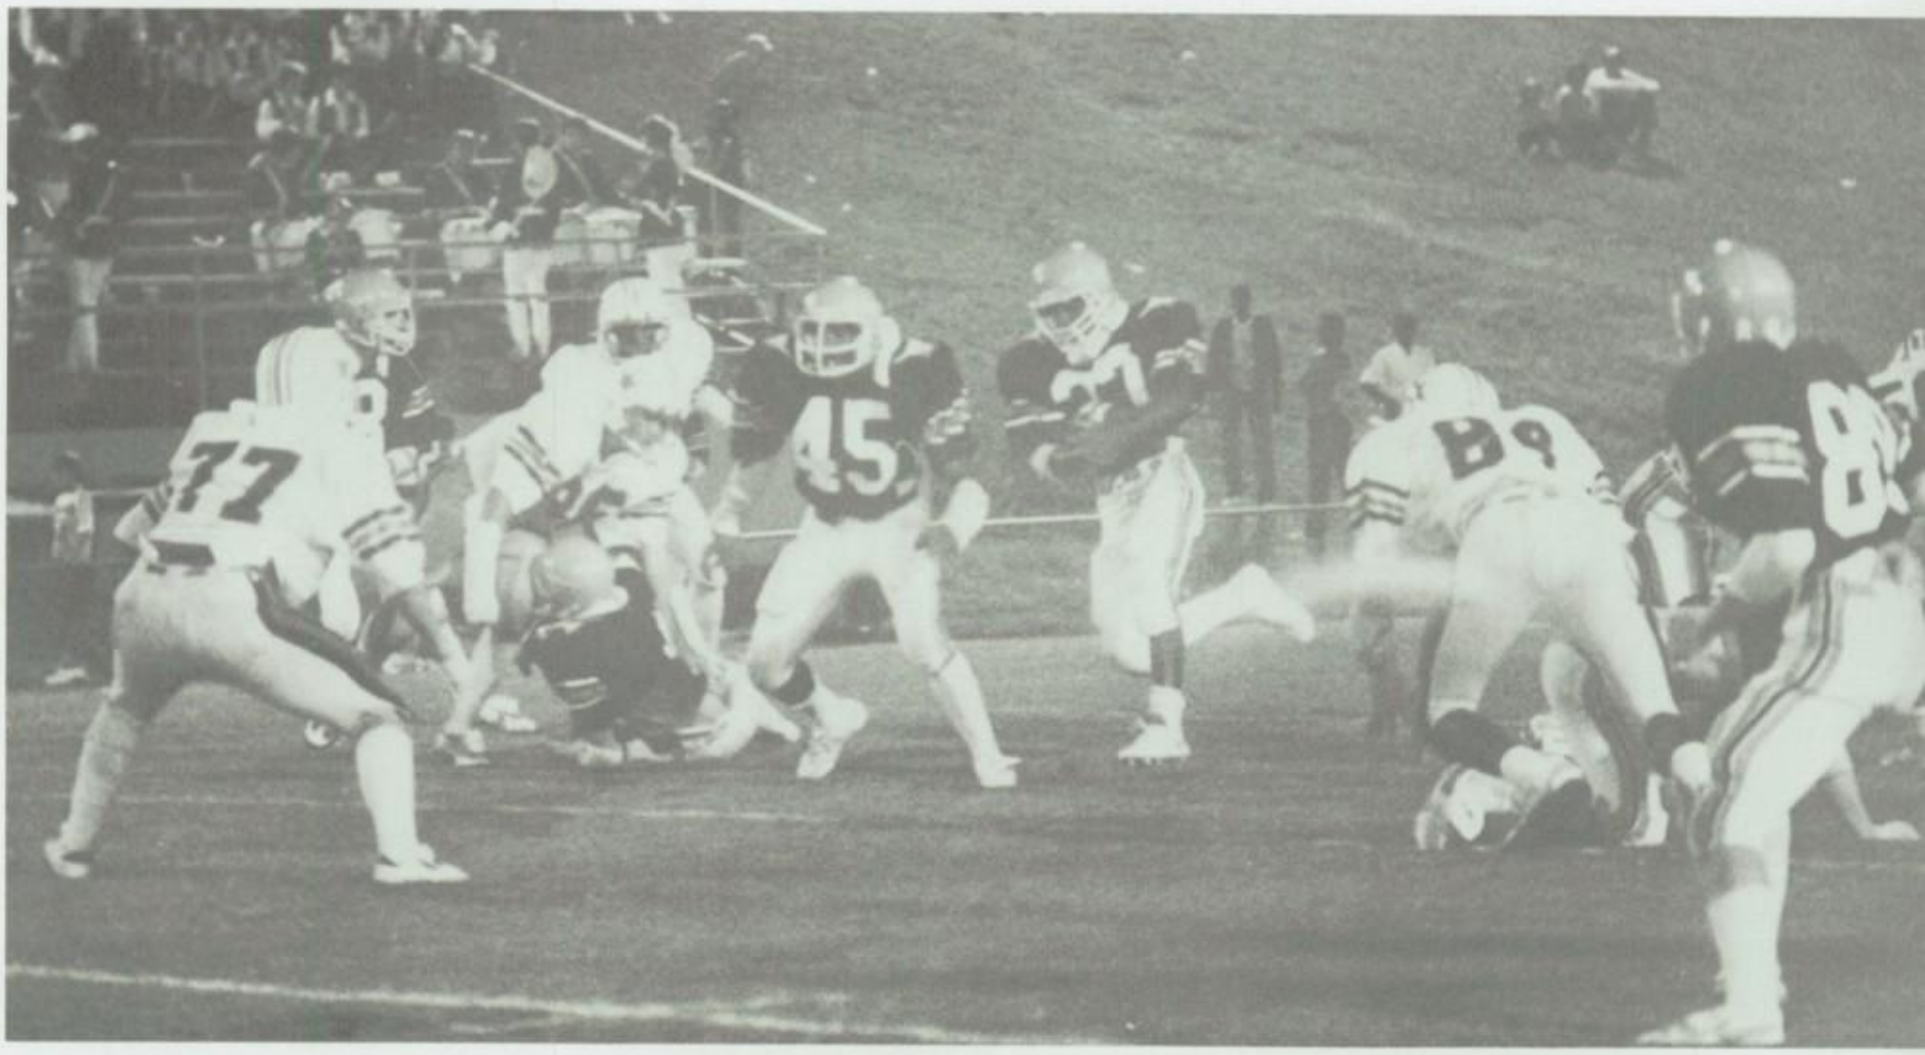


I think this year's team will do much better. We have a good team, but we are small so we have to work twice as hard. I'd like to see us have a winning season and I believe we can do it.

— Lee Lester #26



Football

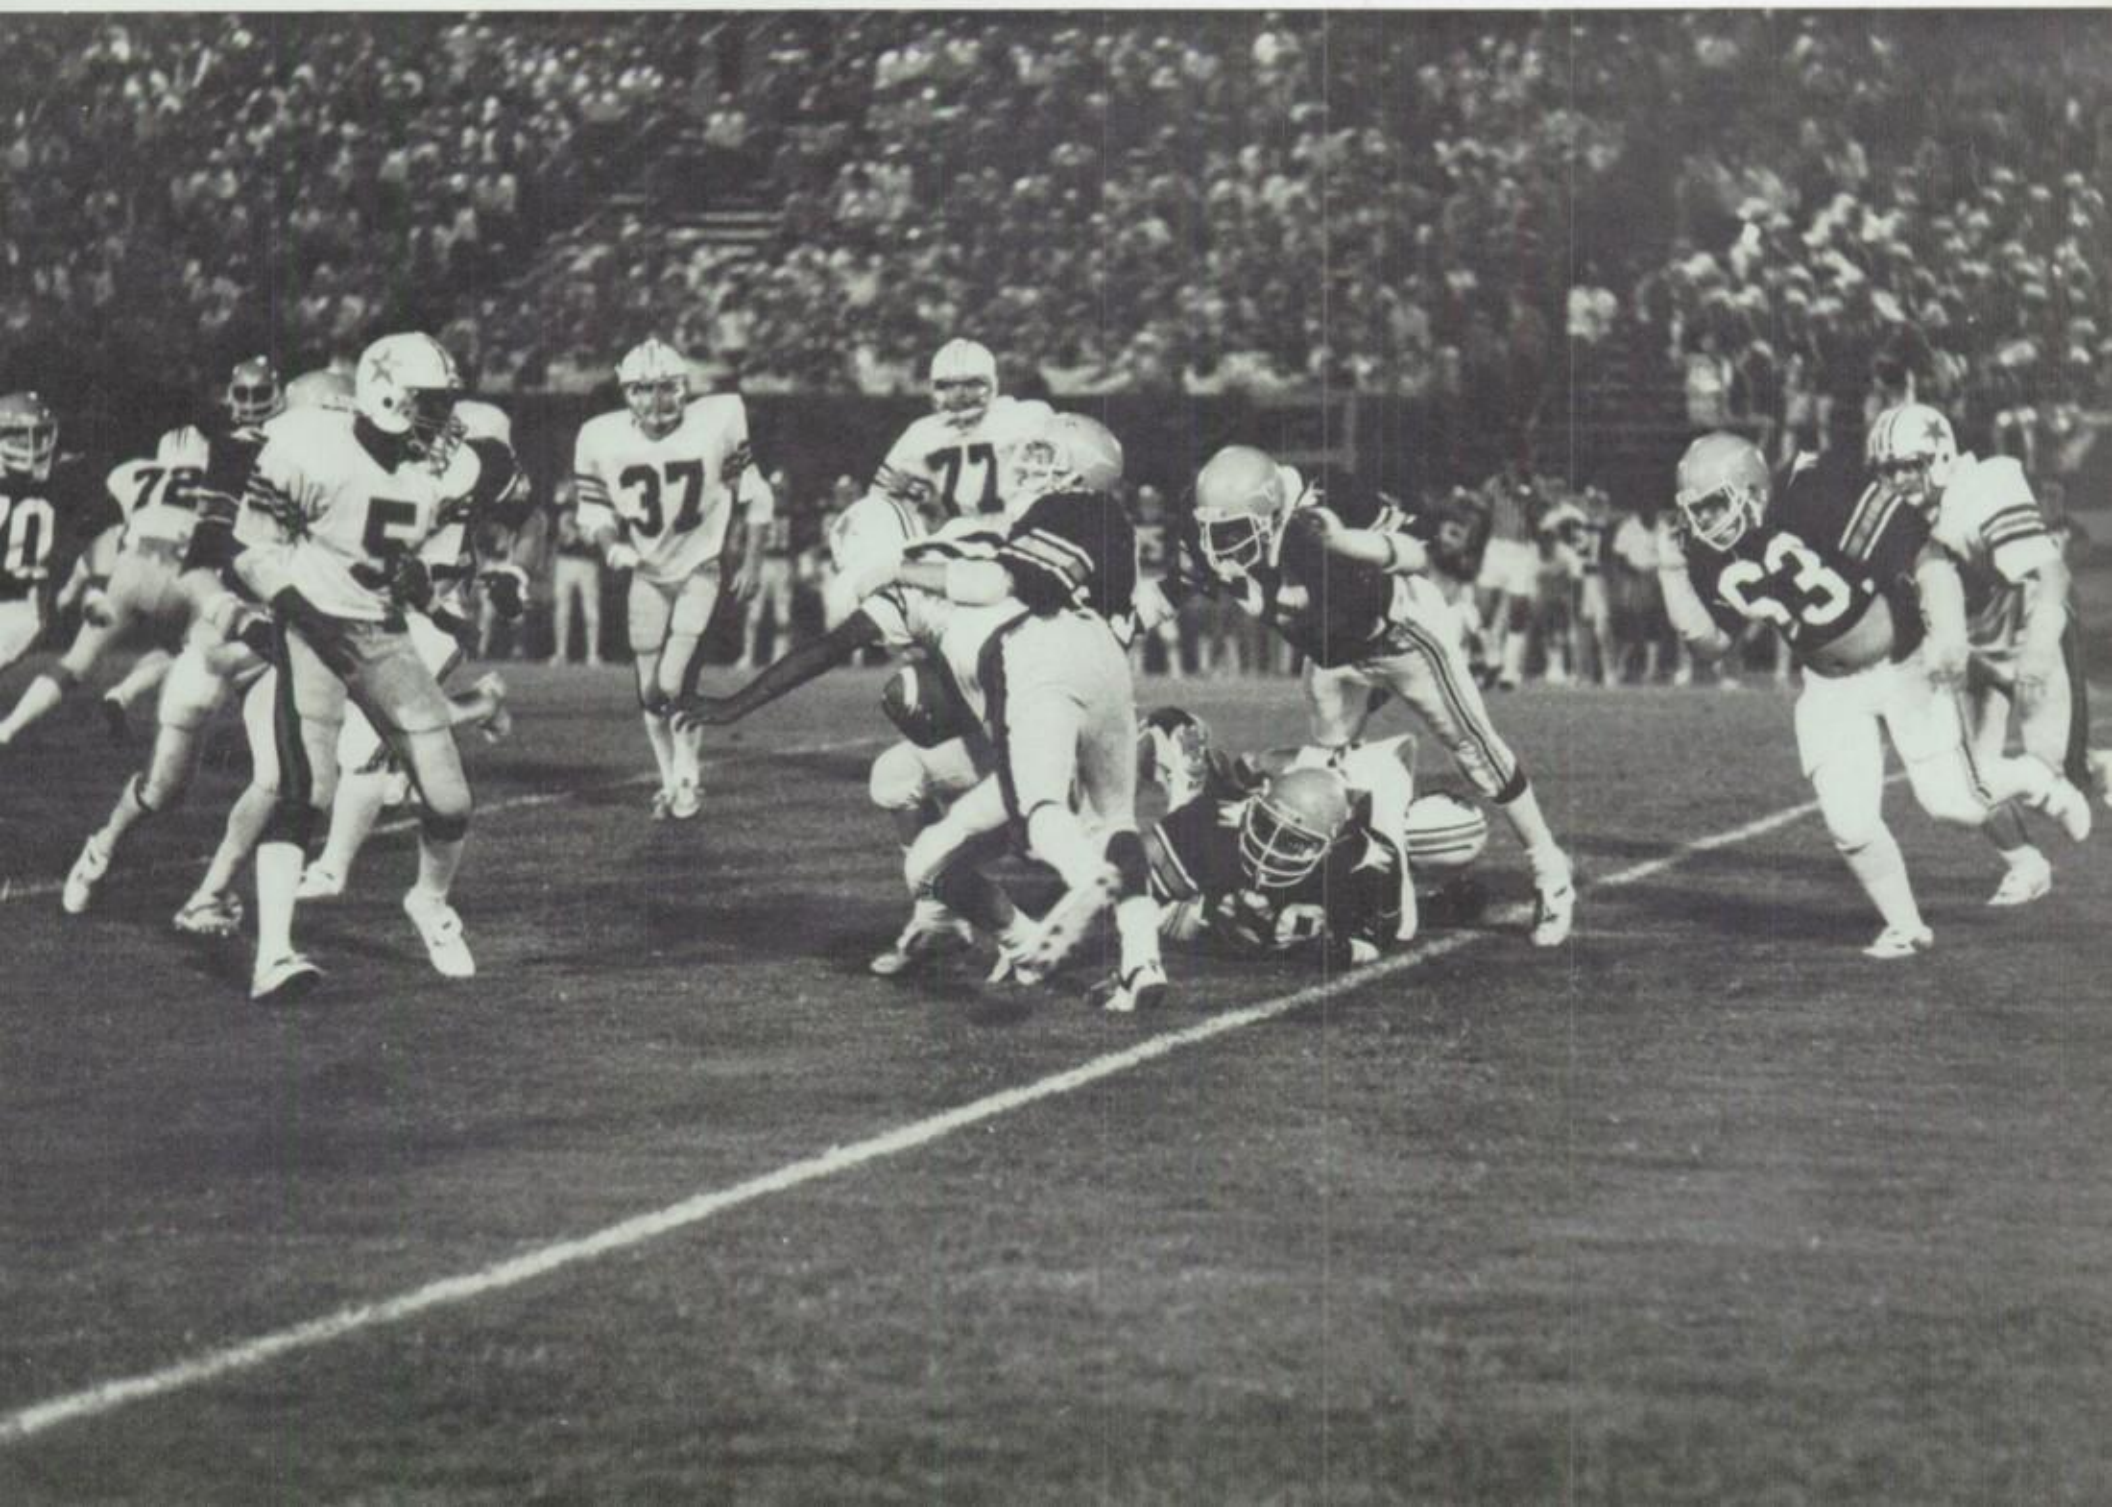


I feel this year we are closer as a team and we have more pride. I feel like we have that special something it takes to be winners and to be proud that we are from Mauldin High School.

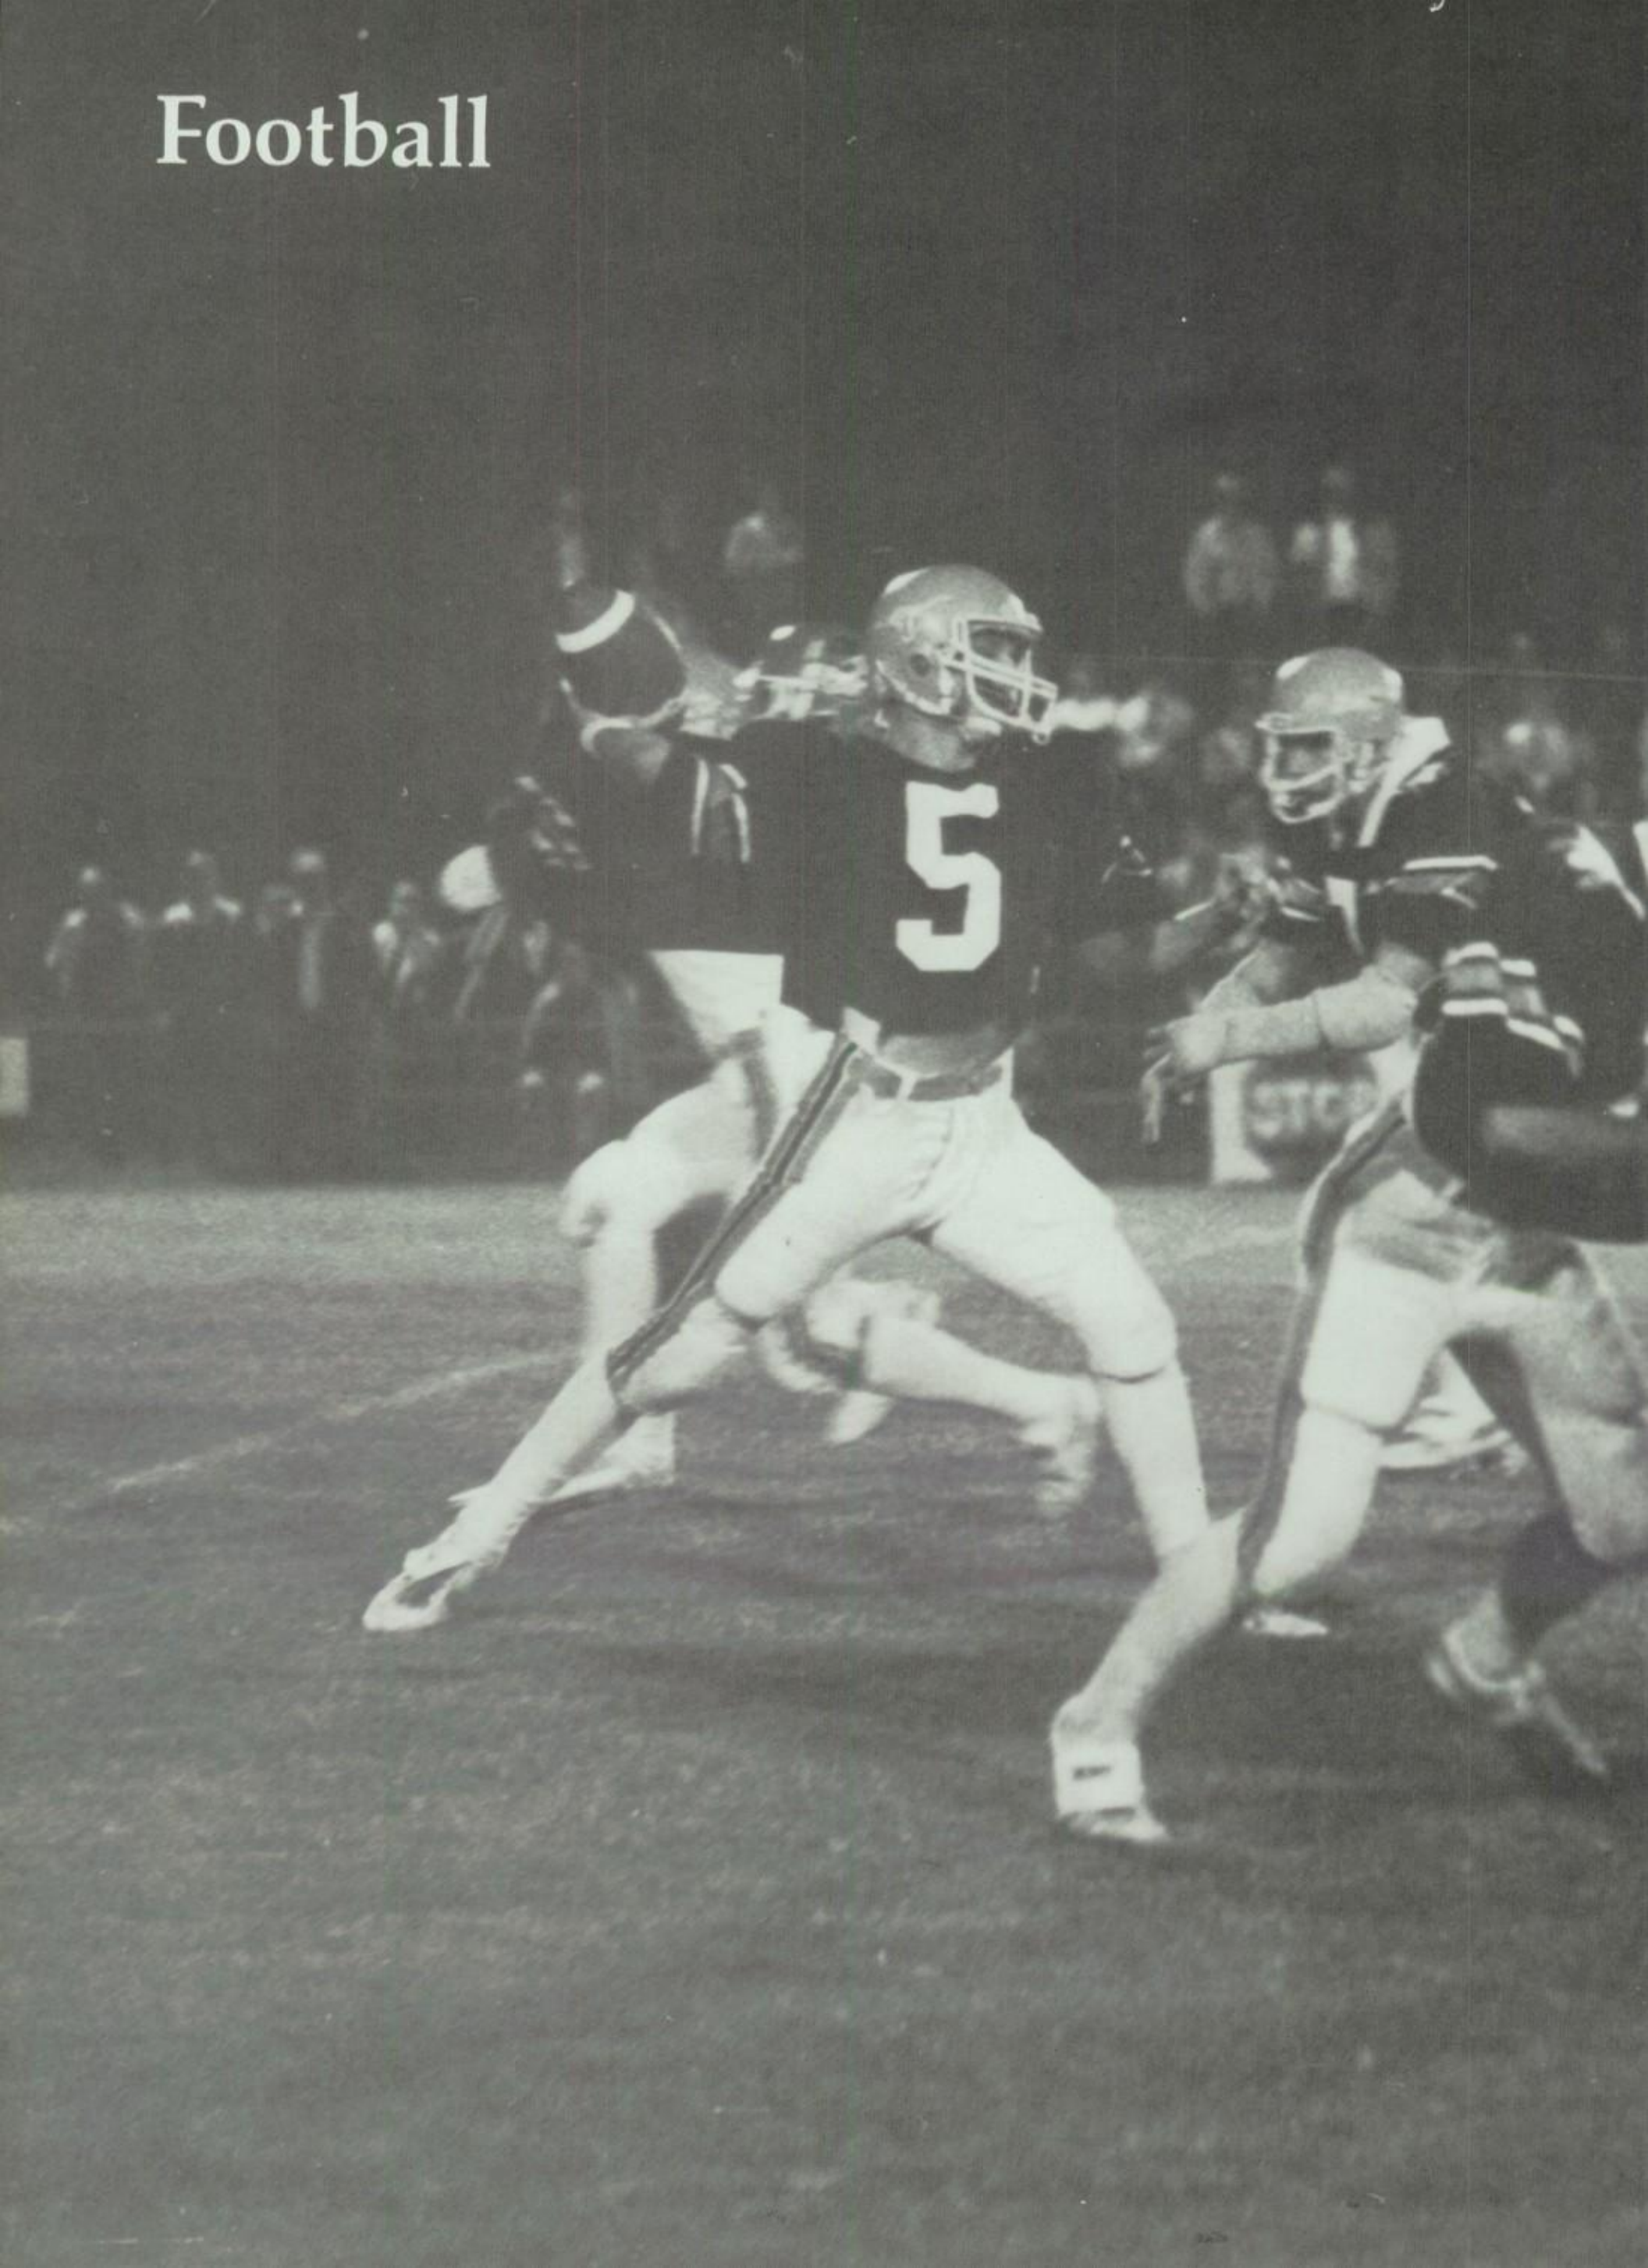
— Scott Dorris #33

The support at Mauldin High is really great. It's a good feeling when you glance up into a full stadium of cheering supporters dressed in orange, brown, and white.

— Tim Sewell #50



Football



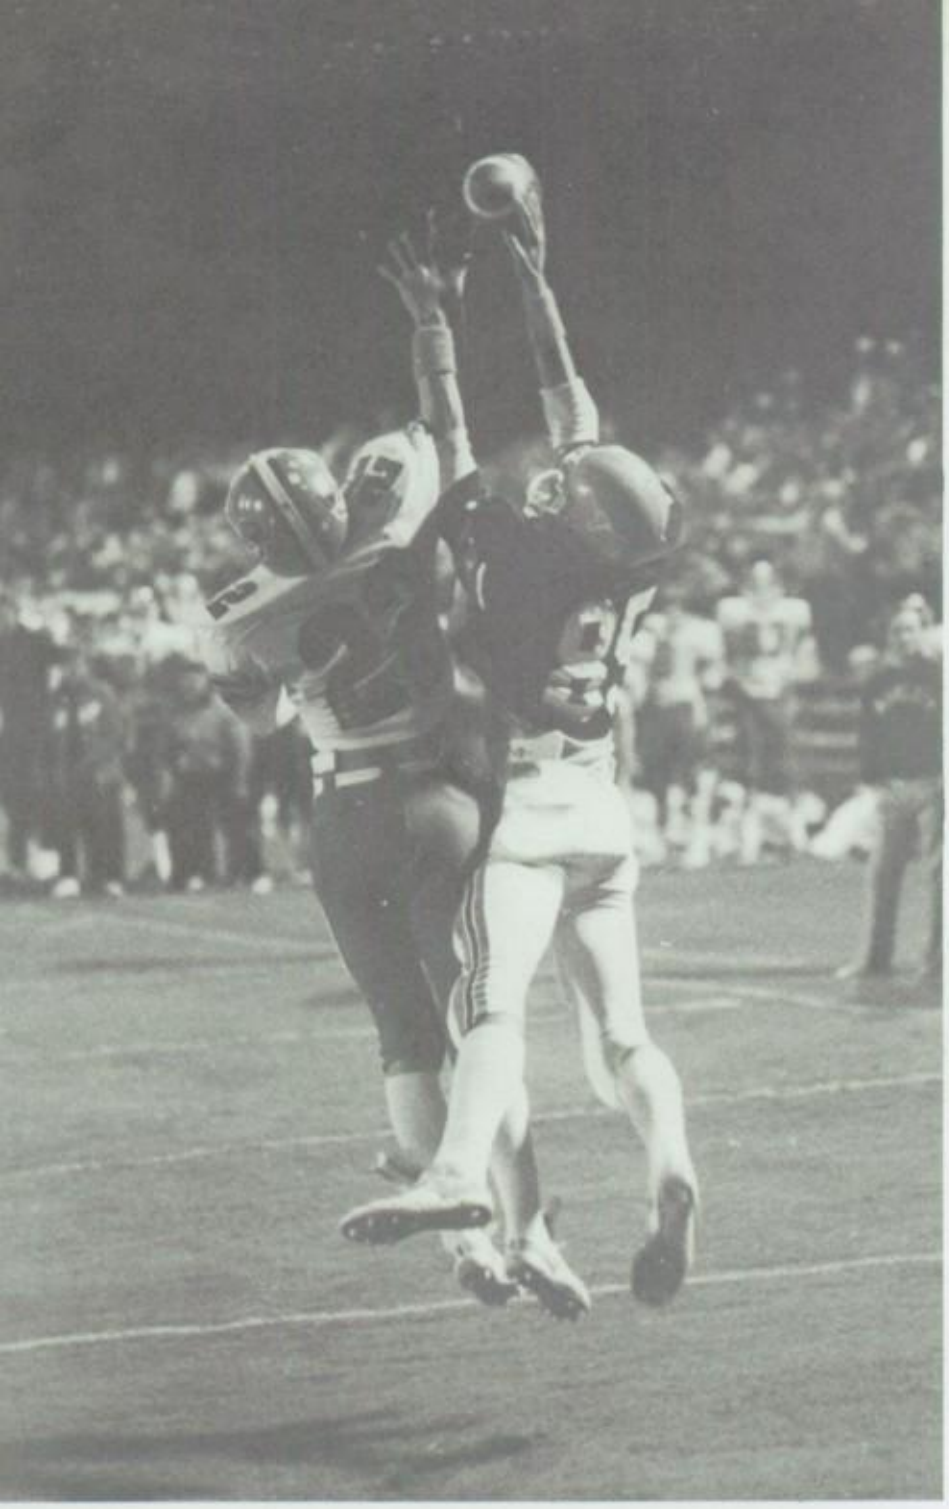
We are a better team than our record indicates. If we could get up for every game and hold the lead, we would be as good a team as any. We've been having a lot of bad luck, but I'm sure the ball will turn our way before long.

— Jon Bykalo #5

Football

Being a football player gets very rough, but being out on the field and seeing all the orange in the stands makes it worthwhile. We have a very close team this year and I think we can be successful. I would like to see us win the Hillcrest game and make it to the playoffs. With hard work and dedication we will get there!

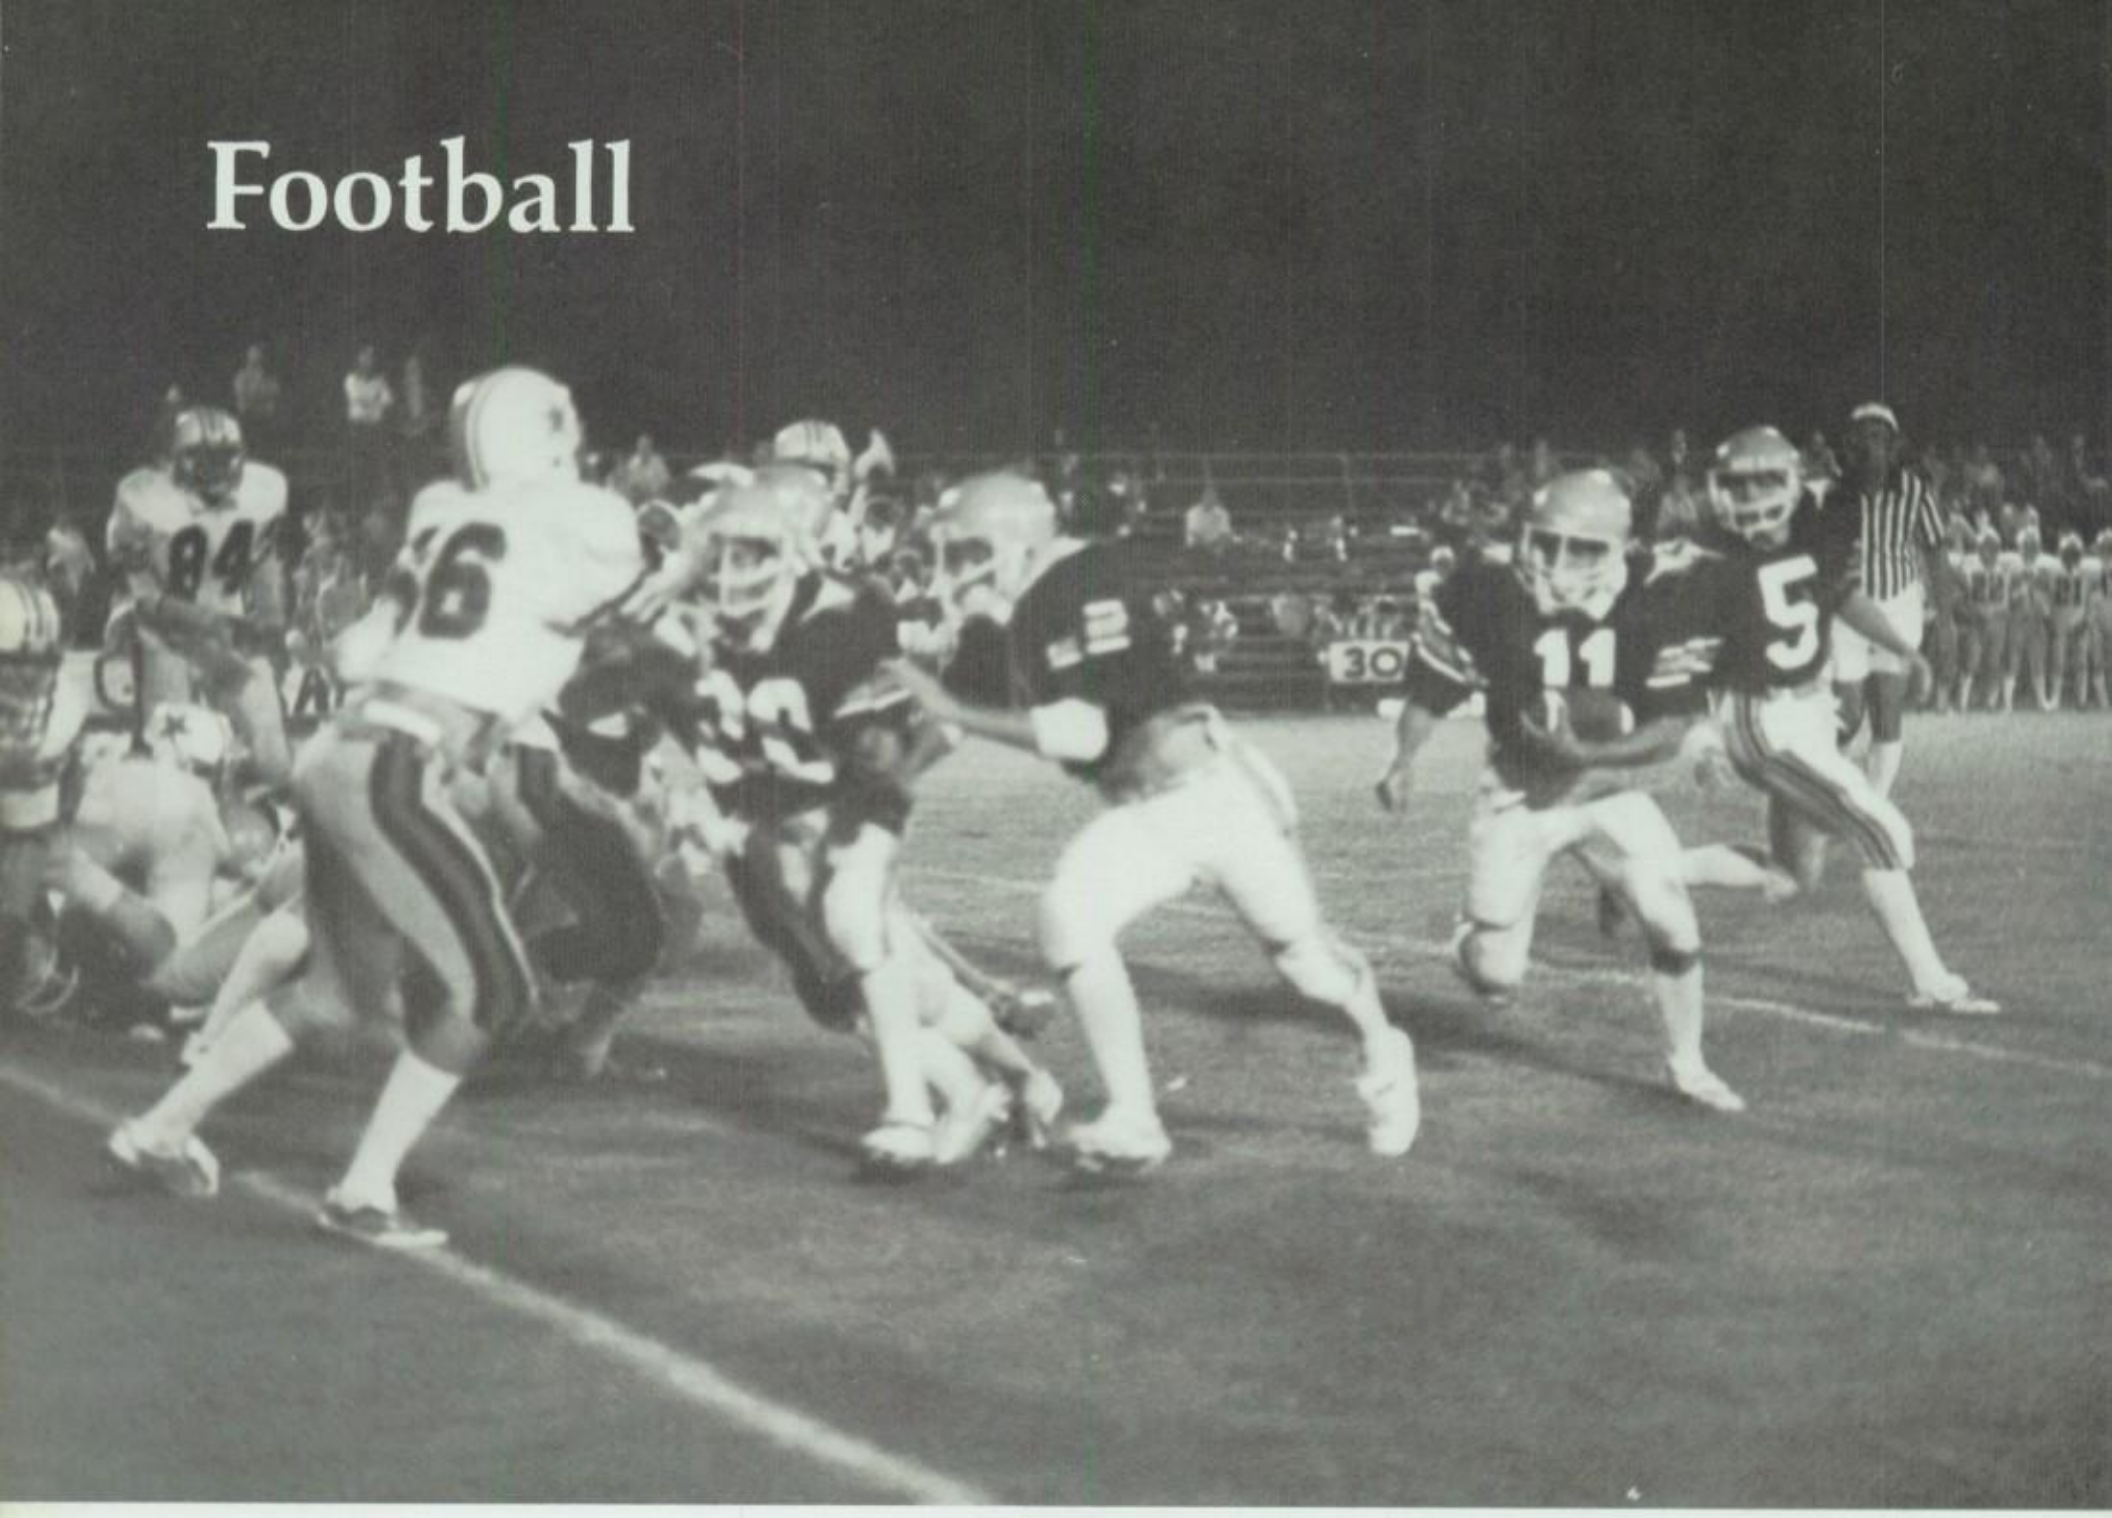
— Pat Williams #45



Compared to last year's team, the attitude is 100% better. This team has the talent and potential to make it to the playoffs. But we must work hard as a team and with our coaches in order to reach our potential.

— David Catron #85

Football



My personal goals for the season are Two
First as an individual to become the best football player I can be, but as a teammate to be supportive and encouraging to the other players. Mauldin is a good football team but the support makes it a great football team.

— Jeff Westhoff #20

I feel that we have an excellent group of young men to work with this year. They've worked hard and they have the right attitude. Provided we have no key personal injuries, we should have a winning season.

We receive excellent support from the student body and community. The Athletic Booster Club has not only done excellent work with the football program, but also has been supportive of the total athletic program.

I want us to have the best basketball team possible. Right now we are playing exciting, competitive basketball. Our basketball team has gotten better every year and this year we have even more involvement and more interest. We have a quick, talented team but we lack size. We also lack a winning tradition and that is the toughest thing to overcome. As our players continue to improve they should gain confidence and that will make us a better team.

— Coach Stan Hopkins

The fans at Mauldin High School give our basketball team a great deal of support, and we appreciate everyone who comes to the games. This year's team will do better than ever and hopefully we'll make it to the playoffs.

Fan support could be a little better, but that is partially our own fault for not winning more games. I promise if we do get the support we need we will show the fans a good ball game. The cheerleaders back us 100%.

Golf is more of an individual sport and it would be difficult to receive much support other than from teammates and Coach Long, but we would appreciate at least a little support from the students.

I feel that soccer is a very good all around sport. It has contact, running, and it takes strategy to play the game.

I feel that if the students understood the game better, they would come out to see more games. However, the support we have been receiving has been great.

I have enjoyed coaching soccer at Mauldin but all the credit should go to the young men who make up the team.

— Coach Don Frost

My personal goals for the season are to win the region and to make Eastside cry. This year's team has much more togetherness and a higher morale than previous teams. All it will take is a spark to light us off and set us on the road to the state championship. — Keen Duke #4

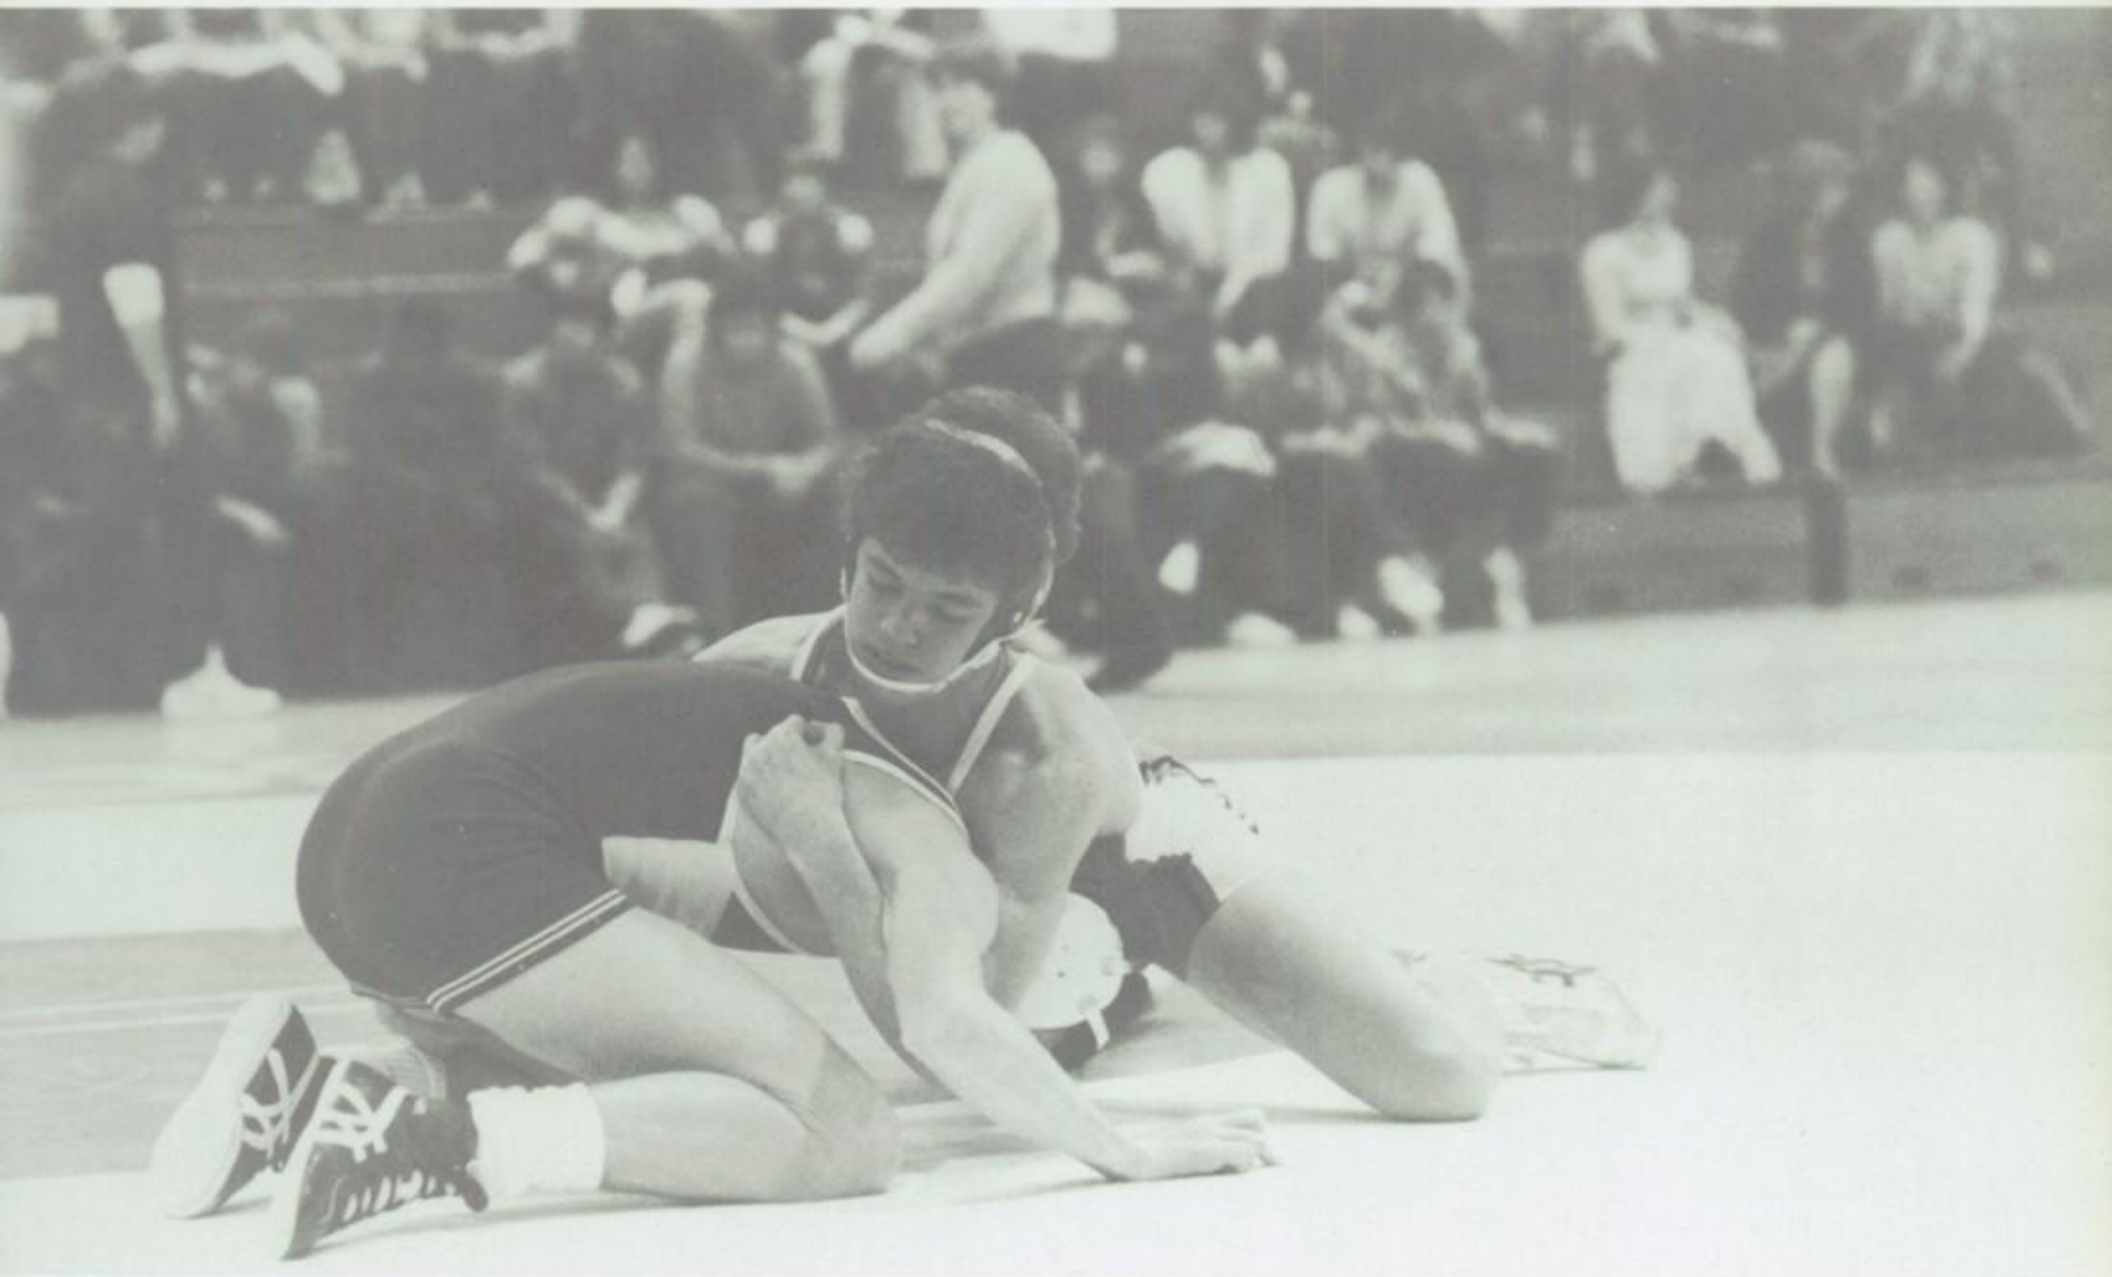
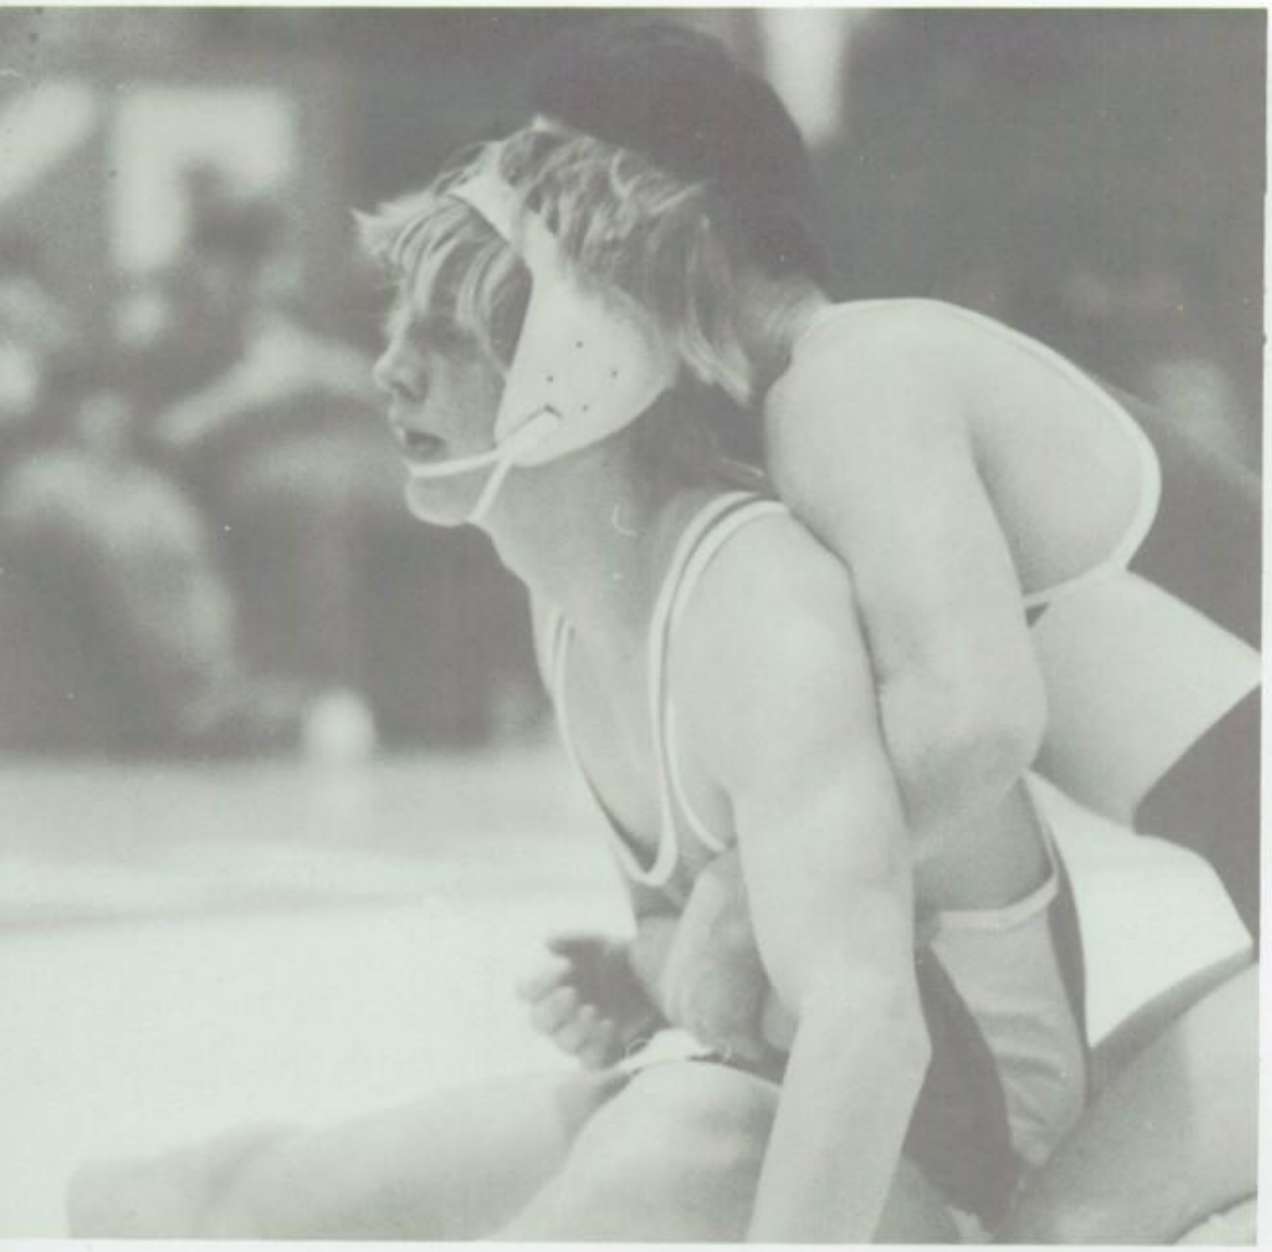
I have a great deal of support in my coaching and management of the wrestling team. Support comes from the Athletic Dept., Miss Koon, the past wrestlers of MHS, and mainly the parents of the present group of wrestlers. Without the backing of these groups our success as a team would be impossible.

Mauldin has a unique situation in that our past wrestlers have always come back to provide the assistance I sometimes need in the practice room. They give to the newer wrestlers their experience and in the long run have been one of the main reasons that Mauldin has been so successful in wrestling.

— Coach Mike Frye





The people who support us this year are really enthusiastic, but I think more people should show up at the matches. Wrestling is a great spectator sport and once they've seen it I'm sure they will agree.

32-2! That was the highest score I've ever got

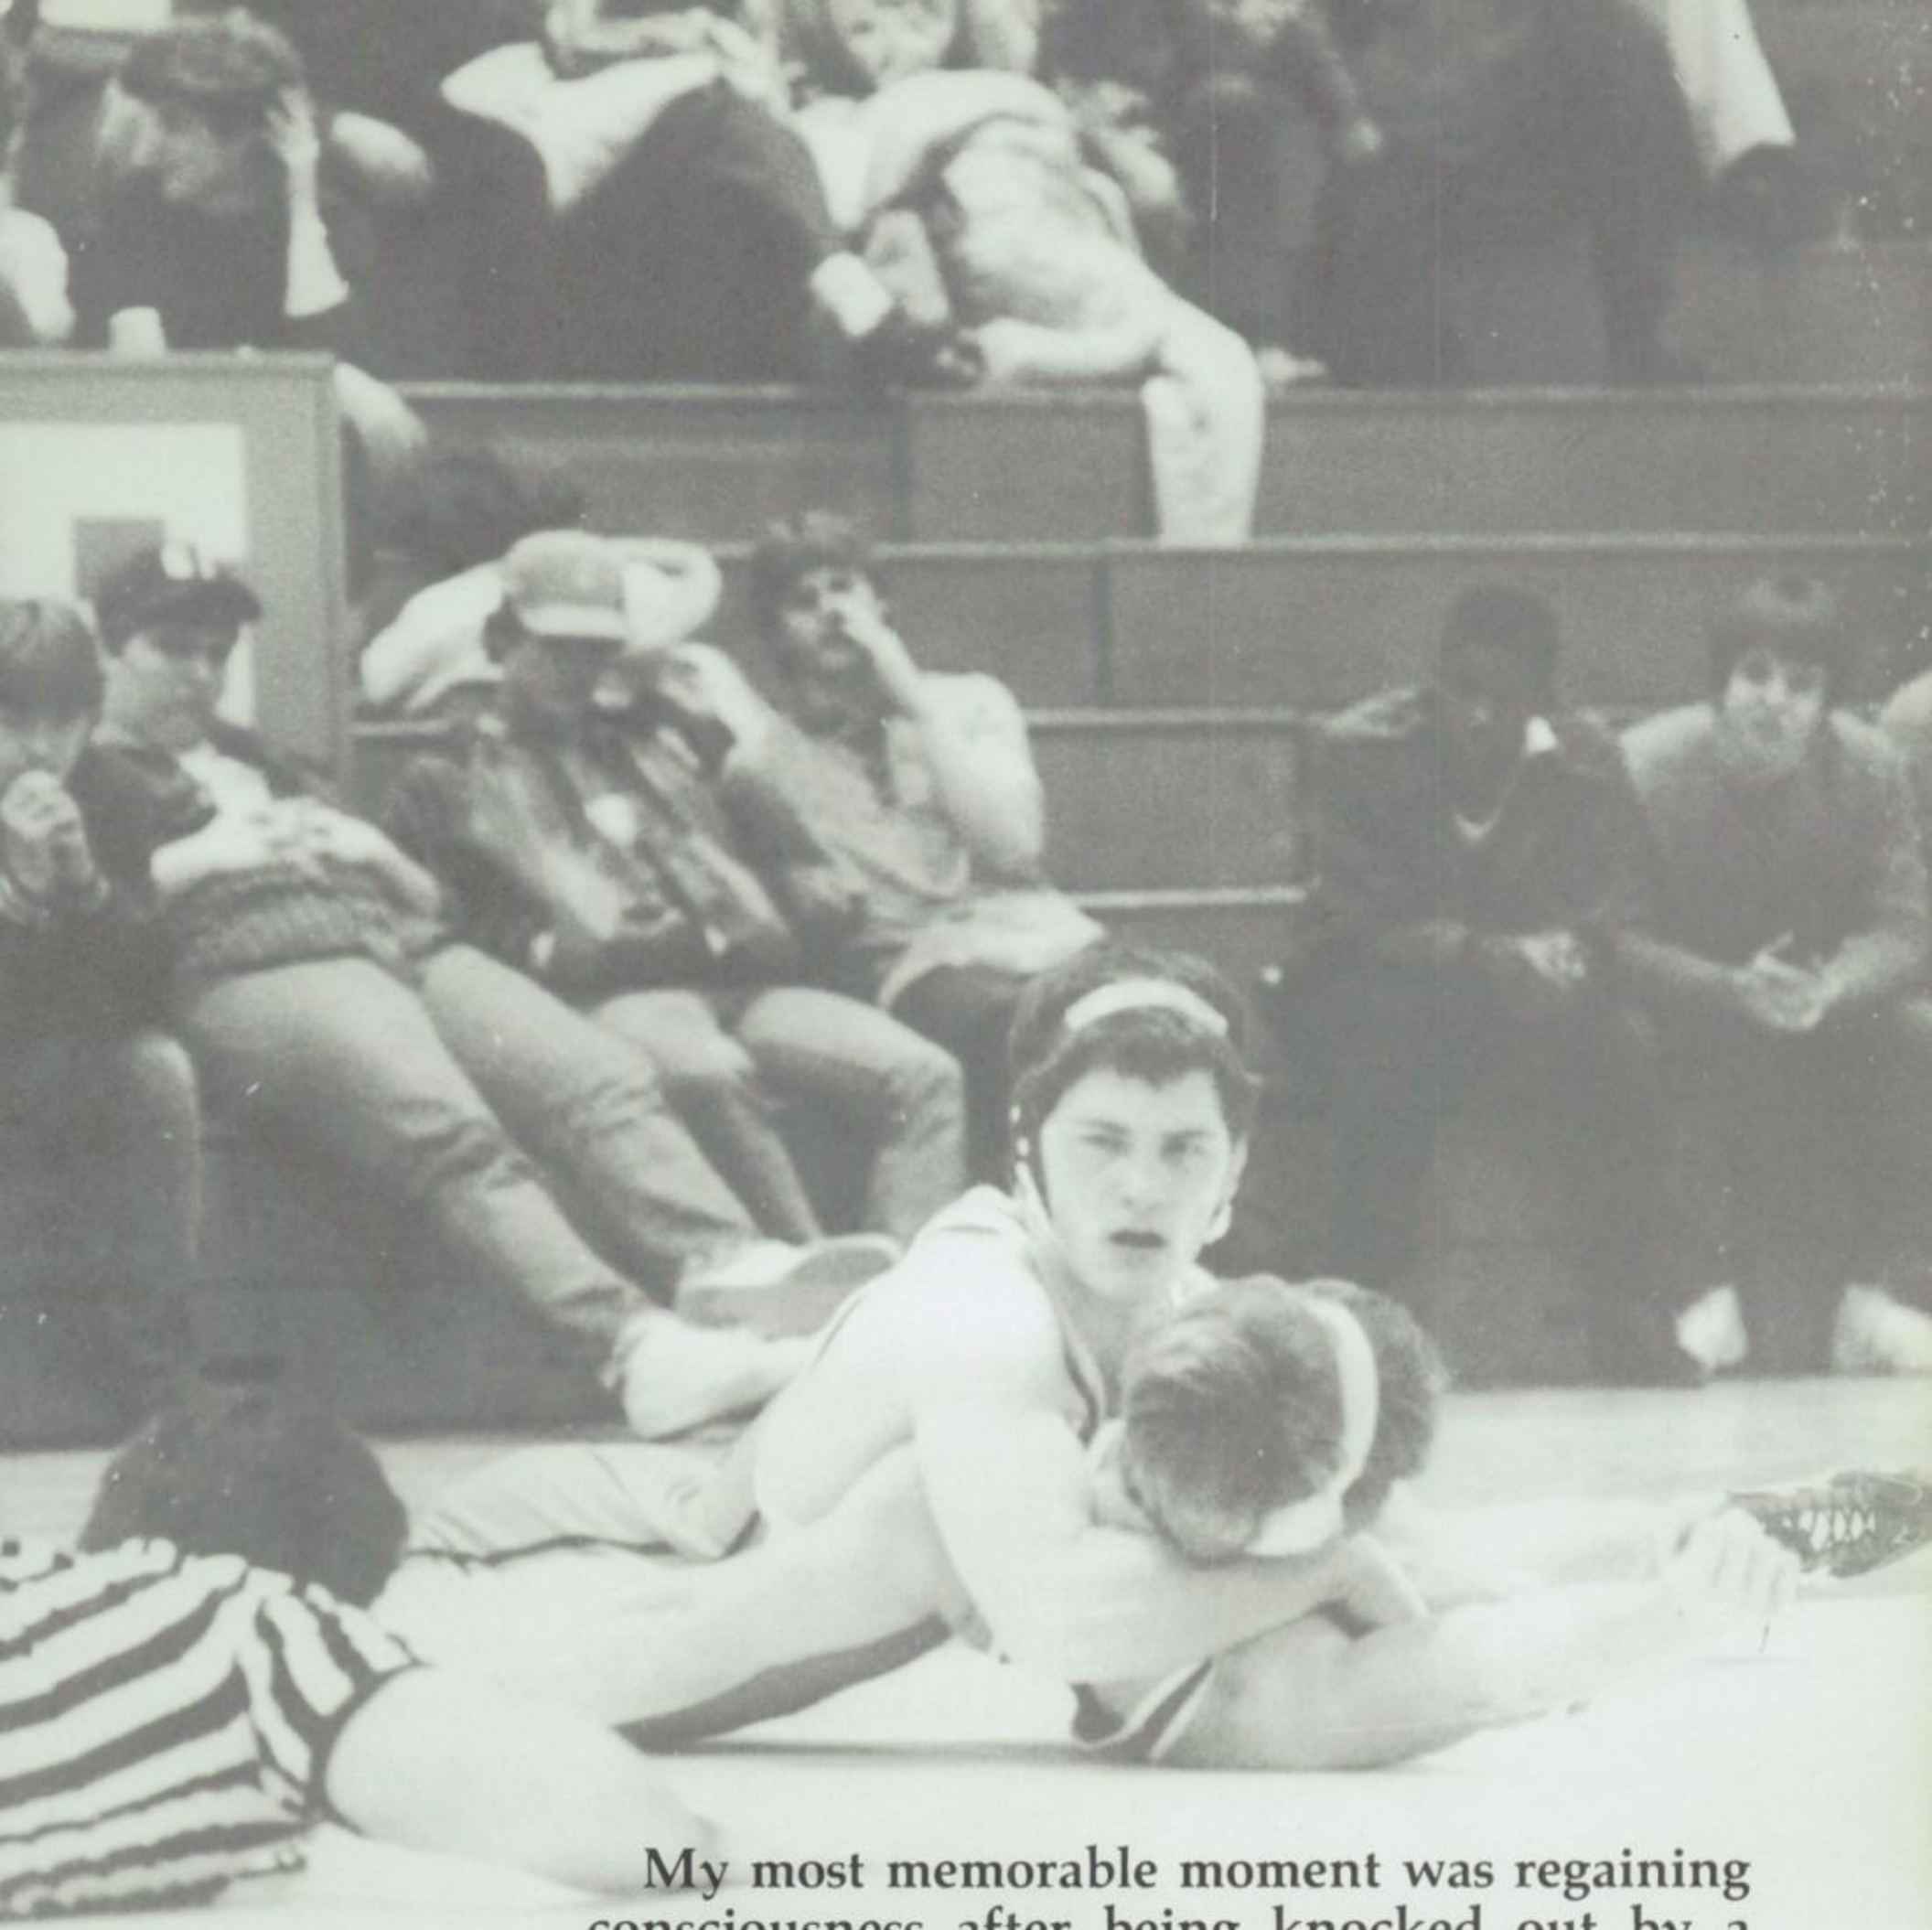
— David Pool



My most memorable moment was regaining consciousness after being knocked out by a Greenwood wrestler.

The only other comment I have is that wrestling does not get enough recognition. The support comes mainly from parents, J.V. wrestlers, and a few others that support us. We work hard and I think we deserve it!

My most memorable moment was when I pinned my opponent in my first ever wrestling match.

This year, the lighter weight classes will do very well, but due to inexperience, the heavier weight classes are considered the weaker spots on the team.

We have four new people on the team this year. It will take some time for us to get organized. Each girl will try to do her best for herself and for the team.

This year we felt the students wanted a change in the Quotable People section. We tried to have more pictures of people on campus rather than in the Publications Room.

We had a lot of fun working together on this section. It was hard work, but being in the darkroom with Laddie made it all worthwhile.

What I will remember most about Mauldin is when the boys on the football team dressed up to be cheerleaders. They all looked really funny!

If I could change anything about my high school year it would be my grades. I would try harder to do better.

Participating in the spirit at pep rallies was great, but every Friday afternoon I would go home hoarse and it would take me until the next Friday to get my voice back.

I really love the feeling you get at the games at Mauldin. I think the class of '84 has had the most spirit since I've been here, but the class of '85 just has not had their chance yet.

Mauldin stampedes cross-country state meet

By Tom Layton
News staff writer

COLUMBIA — Mauldin High lived up to its Maverick nickname Wednesday, twice breaking the ropes of tradition and winning both the AAAA boys and open girls' state cross-country championships.

Both Mauldin teams were such darkhorses that a victory by either of them might have been the story of the year in the small and generally predicatable cross-country running community. The fact that they BOTH won against such long odds on the same cold and drizzly day is hard to believe and harder to explain.

The Mauldin girls, for example, came here with no high expectations. The team's only senior, Karen Bergstrom, pointed to coach Mike Frye and said, "He thinks we can win, but we didn't seriously think so. We were thinking about second or third place."

The boys also might have had doubts, but coach Delmer Howell has worked hard on their attitude the past three months. "I think our boys thought they could get first. I let 'em hear nothing but that. First place or nothing."

But three months is a short time to overcome the head start held by the Spartanburg boys and Irmo girls. Spartanburg won state championships in 1980 and '81 and this year had not been beaten by any team in the Southeast, to say nothing of South Carolina competition. Less than four weeks ago, the Vikings outran Mauldin 46-103 in the Clemson Invitational.

The Irmo girls had been even more dominant, winning six straight state championships and challenging the national record of eight straight. They won the Furman Invitational a month ago, while Mauldin came in third. "We had a lot going against us," Frye admitted.

And this sport of sending seven trained runners across a 5,000-meter course is not one of sudden changes.

On Wednesday at Fort Jackson, however, both Spartanburg and Irmo were up to their Achilles heel in mud and trouble. And the Mauldin teams happened to be in the right place, at the right time.

Irmo should have known it was in trouble when Michelle Crow, two-time champion of the girls' race, was beaten by Sumter's Shana Waters, who is running her first year of cross-country.

Mauldin was paced by Debbie Krejci, a junior whose time of 19:08 placed eighth overall. She was followed by three more juniors, Cean Dziedzic 16th, Jenny Jones 20th and Jan Ingold 21st.

Bergstrom, who was the fifth Mauldin finisher and the 32nd overall, actually won the meet for the Mavericks. She has been out of training with shin splints for the past month and decided Tuesday to run "to help the team." Had she not run, Mauldin would have had to count the 42nd-place finish of Kristen Bergstrom and would have finished second by one point to Richland Northeast.

The boys' victory went even deeper into the pack, and actually was not decided until the Mavericks' sixth finisher, Matt Watkins, outran his Spartanburg counterpart to the finish line. Both teams tied with 64 points (figured by adding the places of their top five finishers), so the sixth-place finishers were used to break the tie.

Howell felt that the Clemson meet was not a true index of his team, because his No. 1 runner was absent. So he figured his team's best times, and Spartanburg's, into the results of last year's state meet, and concluded, "They were just a little ahead of us."

"I knew we were progressing," Howell said. "And I knew that we were the only team that had a shot at Spartanburg. This just shows what good training will do."

Howell once ran for Eastern Kentucky and coached cross-country before retiring from coaching for several years. When he came to Mauldin this year, he found only two runners with any cross-country experience. But he picked three sophomores and two juniors out of the student body, and after some intensive training he has the foundation for a perennial championship program. All seven of Wednesday's runners are underclassmen.

Gary Arnold placed 7th, Eric Fearn 9th, Ronnie Devlin 11th, Mike Cason 16th, John Munyan 21st, Watkins 23rd, and Sean Correll 79th.

The Mauldin girls wound up with 97 points, Northeast 106, and Irmo 109. The winning score, obtained by adding the places of Mauldin's first five finishers, was the highest in eight eight years that the High School League has sanctioned girls' competition.

iss Koon, a Lancaster native, was an intelligent, athletic, feisty young girl who had plenty of role models to guide her toward a career in education. Her father, John H. Koon, was a principal. Her mother, Rosalyn, was a school secretary. One of her uncles was superintendent of the Walhalla schools and another was a college professor.

Nevertheless, Miss Koon didn't plan to teach. She started her college career in journalism. Later she switched her major to her favorite subject, French, and drifted into teaching. She liked teaching high school and felt that her own background gave her a special understanding of high school students.

"I'm almost a goon about dealing with young children, but I think I understand a high school student," she says.

After a couple of years of teaching French in Rock Hill, Miss Koon came to Hillcrest High School in 1964 to teach English and French. She later spent half of her time as a guidance counselor and in 1971 was named assistant principal. The move to Mauldin High as principal two years later was the next logical step in her career.

Miss Koon never has felt that being female hinders her — even when she was faces disciplining a 6-foot-tall student.

With her low-pitched, sometimes gruff voice and forthright manner, Miss Koon does not have a soft image.

She considers herself a strict disciplinarian, but one who tries to make the punishment fit the infraction. Students caught defacing the building or littering the grounds may be assigned temporarily to the school maintenance crew — if parents approve.

Other types of work details and parent conferences also are used.

Sometimes, her students do things that other principals might believe warrant punishment. But Miss Koon doesn't, because of her own history. An example was the case of a student who posted an obscene phrase about Iranians on his locker during the Iranian hostage crisis.

Using an obscenity was an infraction, but before Miss Koon punished the student, she sat down to talk to him about his feelings. She learned that his father was a Marine and that he planned to be one, too. And she decided that punishment was not appropriate, although she talked to the student about finding other ways to express his views.

"At least here's a kid who believes in something," she says.

Miss Koon says today's students are brighter than ever, but she is distressed by their increasing apathy. Her students seldom accept her invitations

Punk Day was my favorite day out of spirit week. It gave me a chance to get really crazy. That is what I'll remember most about M.H.S. The people were not scared to have fun and be themselves.

The only thing I would have changed about my high school years would be our powderpuff game last year. If we would have had the chance to play, we would have DOMINATED! But that just makes us really ready to play this year.

Mauldin stands out from other schools because of our excellence in all fields. Students, teachers, and the whole community always support any activities here.

If I could change anything about my high school years, I would have spent more time learning and applying myself to school. When I graduate I want to be remembered as a person who always made a day at M.H.S. a little more pleasant.

My first day as a freshman was like going down a hall full of terror.

But for the most part, I think that the people at Mauldin High School are pretty cool.

If I could change anything about my high school years, I would have tried harder on my studies instead of goofing off and saved more money for college and more education.

If I could have changed anything about my high school years, it would have been to have anything stop that baseball that went through Coach Bradburn's window.

Half of the people at M.H.S. are alright, but the other half THINK they are too good, but they aren't. If every student would look at others as if they were equal, maybe the spirit at M.H.S. would change for the better.

My first day as a freshman was a complete chaos to me. I didn't know where I was supposed to be going, how my locker worked, or what I was supposed to do. I didn't know anybody, what homeroom to go to, or what the announcements were about.

Saskia Mickers

I think all the teachers here are great! They are willing to go out of their way to help a student who is struggling. All my teachers will make time to help a student progress and help prepare he or she for the tough life they will have in the outside world. That is why I say we have the best staff in the state.

I think Mauldin stands out from other schools because of the way we carry our heads high and act as a family, not just a school.

My favorite day of spirit week was of course Punk Day. I love to dress stranger than usual and really freak everybody out.

I think what I will remember most about Mauldin is being in Mrs. Winters class and explaining to her why I am called 'Stephen". If I could change anything about my high school years, I'd be taller and meet more people, preferrably girls.

I think that spirit at M.H.S. is great. It is very alive and wonderful. Our school spirit and the people make Mauldin stand out from other schools.

Mr. Pinckney is my favorite teacher at Mauldin, because he is easy to get along with. I like him alot.

The thing I remember more about MHS is when me and Greg Wilson were at the beach and Russ Moore came up and told me I had to go home because I failed English. Everyone laughed at me; it was funny, but I was so mad.

The spirit at MHS is great when the teams are winning, but when they are losing, the spirit just drops. The people at this school just can't give up on any of our teams, because the students have to realize that this is their school for four years and if they give up their spirit, our teams will give up also.

Mrs. Gestwicki is my favorite teacher. She is more like my buddy than a teacher. I loved riding in the Freshmen float. Everyone had so much spirit and all the floats looked so good. That is what I call Maul-din Pride.

I guess I will most remember my birthday last year, because when I was walking down the front hall, Brian Davenport threw a huge plastic spider and I screamed because I really hate spiders. Everyone laughed. It was pretty funny, but I was so embarrassed.

Jersey Day was my favorite day out of spirit week because it gives girls a chance to meet new guys or it gives guys a chance to get a pretty girl to wear his jersey.

I feel that we have a great team this year. We just haven't been able to work as a team. We're still young so even if we don't do well this year we will do good next year.
